

CONTENT

I.	General Information . . . . .	5
I.1	Overview of the First Ten Years of Economic Transition . . . . .	5
	The Czech Republic – An Economic Summary of 2002 . . . . .	12
	Year 2002 in the Czech Republic – Major Political and Economic Events . .	13
I.2	History . . . . .	15
I.3	Geography . . . . .	17
I.4	Population . . . . .	18
	Aging of the Czech Population . . . . .	20
II.	Ten Years of Political Transformation . . . . .	22
II.1	Constitutional System. . . . .	22
II.2	Electoral System. . . . .	22
II.3	Electoral History of the Czech Republic . . . . .	23
	Current Major Political Parties . . . . .	24
II.4	Elections of 2002 . . . . .	25
II.5	Regional Administration . . . . .	27
	Regional Councils . . . . .	31
III.	Macroeconomy . . . . .	32
III.1	Gross Domestic Product. . . . .	32
	Floods of 2002 . . . . .	33
III.2	Inflation . . . . .	34
III.3	Public Budgets (Deficits). . . . .	36
III.4	Fiscal Reform . . . . .	39
III.5	Investment . . . . .	40
III.6	Foreign Direct Investment. . . . .	41
III.7	Exchange Rate . . . . .	44
III.8	Foreign Trade and Balance of Payments . . . . .	45
	Firm-Size Convergence as a Driving Force in Early Transition . . . . .	49
IV.	Microeconomy . . . . .	49
IV.1	Privatization and Restructuring . . . . .	49
	Liberalization of the Energy Sector: Electricity and Gas . . . . .	52
IV.2	Czech Capital Markets . . . . .	53
	Central European Stock Exchanges and Foreign Investment . . . . .	55
IV.3	Taxes . . . . .	57
	Income Tax Law . . . . .	58
	The Quality of Government Services and Tax Evasion . . . . .	59
IV.4	Rent Control and Housing . . . . .	62
	Rent Deregulation . . . . .	64
IV.5	Health Care . . . . .	65
	Administering Costs of the System . . . . .	66

IV.6	Business Environment . . . . .	68
	Problems of the Czech Business Environment . . . . .	69
IV.7	Bankruptcy . . . . .	71
IV.8	Corruption . . . . .	73
	Corruption during Transition . . . . .	74
IV.9	Nonprofit Sector . . . . .	76
	New Legislation for the Non-Profit Sector . . . . .	78
V.	Work and Pay . . . . .	79
V.1	Social Security . . . . .	79
V.2	Unemployment and Long-term Unemployment . . . . .	79
	How High Is Czech Long-Term Unemployment? . . . . .	82
V.3	Wages. . . . .	84
	Czech Wage Curves . . . . .	85
V.4	Labor Force Skills . . . . .	86
	School Quality . . . . .	86
V.5	Welfare . . . . .	89
VI.	Ecology . . . . .	90
VI.1	First Ten Years of Transition . . . . .	90
	Environmental Protection and Firms' Finance . . . . .	95
	Flooding Environmental Damages . . . . .	95
VI.2	Energy Intensity Is Still High. . . . .	96
	Temelín Case . . . . .	97
VI.3	EU Environmental Legislation. . . . .	98
	Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) . . . . .	99
	The Benefits of Compliance with the Environmental Acquis . . . . .	99
VII.	The Czech Republic on its Way to the European Union . . . . .	101
VII.1	The Progress toward EU Accession in 2002 . . . . .	101
VII.2	How Will the EU Benefit from the Enlargement? . . . . .	106
	The Common Agricultural Policy (CAP) . . . . .	106
VII.3	The Czech Republic in the Enlarged EU . . . . .	107
VII.4	Convergence? . . . . .	109
	Can a Country with Such Low Growth Rates Ever Catch Up with the EU? . .	111
VII.5	EU Accession and Labor Migration. . . . .	113
	Estimated Migration to Germany . . . . .	114
	Survey Evidence . . . . .	116
	Managing Immigration . . . . .	117
VIII.	Comparative Statistics . . . . .	118
IX.	Forecasts . . . . .	120
X.	List of CERGE-EI Working Papers . . . . .	121
XI.	List of CERGE-EI Discussion Papers . . . . .	122