

Contents

Preface	vii
Introduction	1
Part I
A generic view of learning	9
1 The process of learning: the development of a generic view of learning	11
2 The framing of learning: the conception of the structure of knowledge	32
3 The framing of learning: emotion and learning	44
4 The framing of learning: approaches to learning	58
Part II
Exploring reflective and experiential learning	69
5 Reflective and experiential learning: taking stock	71
6 The nature of reflective learning	79
7 The depth quality of reflective learning	95
8 Exploring experiential learning: the literature	103
9 Experiential learning and reflective learning: drawing it together	121

Part III
Working with reflective and experiential learning		131
10	Introducing reflective activities to learners	133
11	Assessment issues	149
12	Enhancing reflective and experiential learning	158
Resources		183
Resource 1	The processes of writing reflectively: a map of reflective writing	184
Resource 2	Reflective writing: some initial guidance for students	186
Resource 3	A comparison of reflective writing and report or essay writing	190
Resource 4	Samples of reflective writing	192
Resource 5	The Park: an exercise in reflective writing	196
Resource 6	The Presentation: an exercise in reflective writing	204
Resource 7	Questions to support reflective writing	210
Resource 8	Dialogue: an exercise to develop reflective thinking and writing	212
Resource 9	A framework for reflective writing	214
Resource 10	The Dance Lesson: an exercise in reflective writing	217
Resource 11	Strategies for enhancing learning from everyday experience	223
Resource 12	An exercise on judgement	226
Resource 13	Footprints	227
Resource 14	Poetry as a form of capturing experience	230
Glossary		231
Bibliography		235
Index		248