

Contens tion

Introduction	7
I. Information, Information Science and Information Ecology
Information as a Transcendental Concept: the Future of Information Science	13
Information as an Analogical Concept: the Possibility of Information Ecology	38
II. Information, Documents and Visually Impaired Users
Information and Visually Impaired: Arguments for Realism in Information Science	49
Information and Data De-visualization: Information for Visually Impaired	71
Information for Visually Impaired: a Document Paradigm Revival	81
III. Information, Entropy and Information Ethics
Information Macroethics: the Problem of Abortions	99
Information Microethics: the Problem of Disinformation.	111
Conclusions	119
Summary	120