

Contents

List of briefings	page xvii
List of controversies	xix
List of figures	xx
List of tables	xxi
Preface and acknowledgements to the third edition	xxiii
List of abbreviations and acronyms	xxiv
How to use this book	xxvii
Introduction	1
Why comparative politics?	1
Understanding our own country	2
Understanding other countries	2
Constructing valid generalisations	2
The strengths and weakness of cross-national comparative political science	4
The problems of cross-national comparative research	5
It cannot answer questions of values	6
It lacks evidence	6
It deals in probabilities not certainties or laws	6
It suffers from the flaw that what is important is often difficult to compare and that what can be measured and compared may not be worth studying	7
It neglects that every country in the world is unique so comparisons are impossible	8
The themes that run through the book – what to watch for	9
The importance of institutions	9
History matters	10
The social and economic basis of politics	10
Politics matters	10
From a mass of detail to general types	10
There are many ways of achieving the same democratic goals	11

PART I

The state: origins and development 13

1 The development of the modern state 15

What is a state? 16

Territory, people, sovereignty 20

The rise of the modern state 23

 Historical origins and development 24

 State formation and nation building 25

 Catalysts: war and capitalism 27

 Growth after 1945 29

 Failed states 30

State theories 30

 Constitutional approaches 31

 Ethical and moral approaches 31

 Conflict approaches 32

 Pluralist approaches 32

 Other theories 32

What have we learned? 33

Lessons of comparison 33

Projects 34

Further reading 34

Websites 34

2 States and democracy 36

Why study states in a globalised world? 37

The modern state and democracy 41

 Citizens' rights 41

 Elections and parliamentary accountability 42

Measuring and comparing democracies 44

Redistribution and the active state 50

Theories of state and society 51

 State supremacy 52

 State dependency 52

 Interdependency 53

 Separation and autonomy 54

What have we learned? 54

Lessons of comparison 55

Projects 55

Further reading 56

Websites 56

3 Democratic change and persistence 57

Transitions to democracy 58

The limits of democratisation 63

Embedded, partial and defective democracies 64

Theories of democratic change	68
What have we learned?	69
Lessons of comparison	70
Projects	71
Further reading	71
Websites	72
PART II
The polity: structures and institutions	73
4 Constitutions	75
What a constitution is, and why we have them	76
The separation of powers	79
Executives	80
Legislatures	81
Judiciaries	84
Unitary and federal states	86
The limits of constitutionalism	86
Constitutional and institutional theories	87
The 'old constitutionalism'	87
The 'new constitutionalism'	88
The 'new institutionalism'	89
The mobilisation of bias	89
Institutional influence, rules and inertia	90
Marxist structural theory	90
Governance	91
What have we learned?	91
Lessons of comparison	92
Projects	92
Further reading	93
Websites	93
5 Presidential and parliamentary government	94
Presidential systems	95
Parliamentary systems	97
Semi-presidential systems	100
Presidential, parliamentary and semi-presidential systems compared	101
Theories of parliamentary, presidential and semi-presidential government	103
What have we learned?	105
Lessons of comparison	106
Projects	106
Further reading	106
Websites	107

6	Multi-level government: international, national and sub-national	108
	Supra-national and international government	110
	Confederations	110
	The European Union: federation or confederation?	111
	The national level: federal and unitary states	112
	Geographically large countries	115
	Countries with markedly different geographical regions	115
	Unitary states	118
	Unitary, federal and confederal government compared	120
	Local government	120
	Central–local political conflict	123
	Democracy, size and efficiency	124
	Restructuring local government	127
	The interplay of multi-level government: the case of the EU	128
	The arguments for and against centralisation and decentralisation	129
	Theories of multi-level government	130
	Philosophical and political theories: Mill and Tocqueville	130
	Pluralist theories	131
	Economic theories	131
	Centre–periphery relations	133
	What have we learned?	134
	Lessons of comparison	135
	Projects	135
	Further reading	135
	Websites	136
7	Policy making and legislating: executives and legislatures	137
	Making laws: executives and legislatures	138
	The rise of executives	140
	Increasing power of executives?	142
	The functions of legislatures	144
	Representation of public opinion	144
	Legitimation	145
	Law making	145
	Scrutiny of the executive and the administration	147
	Legislative committees	148
	Theories of democratic institutions: consensus and majoritarian systems	150
	Majoritarian democracy, or the ‘Westminster model’	150
	Consensus democracy	151
	What have we learned?	153

Lessons of comparison	153
Projects	154
Further reading	154
Websites	154
8 Implementation: the public bureaucracy	155
The organisation of the state bureaucracy	156
Policy making and administration	160
The dictatorship of the official?	161
The power of the permanent official	161
Mechanisms of control	162
The New Public Management: reinventing government	163
Privatisation and market efficiency	164
Empowerment	164
Theories of public bureaucracy	166
The rational-legal ideal-type	167
Clientelism	168
Rational choice and the New Public Management	168
What have we learned?	170
Lessons of comparison	170
Projects	171
Further reading	171
Websites	172
PART III
Citizens, elites and interest mediation	173
9 Political attitudes and behaviour	175
Political attitudes	176
Political interests and identity	176
Political culture	177
The civic culture	180
Materialism and post-materialism	182
Subcultures and elite cultures	184
Political cleavages	185
Different cleavage lines	186
Political behaviour	188
Modes of political behaviour	189
Conventional and unconventional political behaviour	191
Internet participation	192
Patterns of political behaviour	192
The 'civic voluntarism model' of political participation	196
Theories of political attitudes and behaviour	199
Marxist and class theory	199
Rational-choice theory	200
Social and psychological theories	202

153	6	What have we learned?	202
154		Lessons of comparison	203
154		Projects	203
154		Further reading	203
155		Websites	204
156		10 Pressure groups and social movements	205
160		Political connections	206
161		Voluntary organisations and pressure groups	206
161		Pressure groups and political parties	210
162		Social movements	210
163		Pressure groups and social movements in action	212
164		Groups and issues	213
164		The nature of government	214
166		Determinants of power	217
167		Group features	218
168		The political environment	219
168		Corporatism, para-government and tri-partism/ pluralism	220
170		Corporatism	220
171		Para-government	221
171		Tri-partism/pluralism	222
172		International NGOs	223
		Groups, pressure groups and democracy	223
		Theories of voluntary organisations	226
173		Pluralism	226
		Marxist/elitist theory	227
175		Social capital and civil society theory	228
176		What have we learned?	230
176		Lessons of comparison	230
177		Projects	231
180		Further reading	231
182		Websites	232
184		11 The mass media	233
185		The media in theory and practice	234
188		Regulating the media	235
189		The public service model	235
191		The market model	237
192		Ownership and control	241
192		Cultural imperialism and soft power	242
196		The new pluralism	243
199		Theories of the mass media	244
199		What have we learned?	247
200		Lessons of comparison	248
202

Projects	249
Further reading	249
Websites	250
12 Voters and elections	251
Elections	252
Democratic elections	252
Voting systems	252
Election turnout	256
Party voting	260
Economic voting and stratification	260
Religious voting	262
Other voting patterns	263
New party voting patterns	263
Tradition and change in Mexico	265
Theories of voting	266
Sociological approaches: the Columbia school	267
Psychological approaches: the Michigan school	268
Rational choice	269
What have we learned?	270
Lessons of comparison	271
Projects	271
Further reading	271
Websites	272
13 Party government	273
Party organisation	274
New parties and movements	276
Party systems and party families	277
Party families	278
Party systems	280
One-party and coalition government	281
Coalition government	283
Coalitions and government effectiveness	285
Parties and democracy	286
Theories of parties	288
The 'iron law of oligarchy'	288
Duverger's law	289
Majoritarian and consensus government revisited	291
What have we learned?	293
Lessons of comparison	293
Projects	294
Further reading	294
Websites	294

	PART IV
	Policies and performance	297
14	Political ideologies: conservatism, liberalism, Christian democracy and socialism	299
	The nature of ideology	300
	Four democratic ideologies	302
	Conservatism	302
	Liberalism	303
	Christian democracy	308
	Socialism and social democracy	309
	Three other schools of thought	311
	Nationalism	311
	Green political thought	313
	Populism	314
	Theories of ideology	314
	Marxist and neo-Marxist theories	315
	Material and non-material interests	316
	The end of ideology and the end of history	317
	What have we learned?	318
	Lessons of comparison	319
	Projects	319
	Further reading	319
	Websites	320
15	Decision making	321
	Public policies: their nature and importance	322
	Goals and results	322
	The nature of policy-making processes	322
	Unending policy cycles	324
	The public-policy cycle	324
	Agenda setting	325
	Decision making	327
	Choice of means	328
	Implementation	329
	Outputs and outcomes	330
	Evaluation and feedback	330
	Public-policy structures	331
	Corporatism	332
	Pluralism	334
	Tripartite arrangements	334
	Policy communities	335
	Policy networks	335

Theories of decision making	336
Rational-comprehensive models	336
Muddling through	337
Bounded rationality and advocacy coalitions	338
What have we learned?	339
Lessons of comparison	339
Projects	340
Further reading	340
Websites	341
16 Public spending and public policies	342
The ends and means of government	343
General government expenditure	345
Welfare states and redistribution	348
Comparing social security systems	349
Redistribution? The effects of social transfers and taxation	350
Trends in social expenditure	352
Theories of the welfare state	355
Conflict-oriented approaches	356
Functionalist explanations	357
Institutional approaches	358
International and transnational dependencies	359
What have we learned?	360
Lessons of comparison	360
Projects	361
Further reading	361
Websites	361
17 The future of the democratic state	362
States and sovereignty	363
Conventional states, proto-states and supra-national states	364
Challenges to the state	366
Importance of international governmental organisations	368
The retreat of the state?	369
Democracy without borders	371
The quality of democracy	371
Reform of state and government	372
The future	377
What have we learned?	378
Lessons of comparison	378
Projects	379
Further reading	379
Websites	380

	Postscript: how and what to compare?	381
	Comparing many or a few countries?	382
	Comparing many cases	383
	Comparing a few cases	385
	Selecting comparable countries	386
	How many countries is enough?	390
	Comparing apples and oranges	392
	Looking for more abstract concepts	392
	Looking for equivalent concepts	394
	What have we learned?	395
	Projects	396
	Further reading	396
	Websites	396
	Glossary of key terms	397
	Index	413
350		316
352		316
355		317
356		318
357		319
358		319
359		319
360		320
360		320
361		321
361	15 Decision making	322
361	Goals and results	322
362	The future of the democratic state	322
363	States and sovereignty	324
364	Conventional states, proto-states and supra-national states	325
366	Challenges to the state	327
368	Importance of international governmental organisations	328
369	The treat of the states?	329
371	Democracy without borders	330
371	The quality of democracy	330
373	Reform of state and government	333
377	The future	332
378	What have we learned?	332
378	Lessons of comparison	334
379	Projects	335
379	Further reading	335
380	Websites	335