

Contents

Preface v

Acknowledgments ix

Part I Enduring Issues in Adventure Programming

Controversial Issue 1	Do the benefits of adventure programming outweigh the risks?	3
Controversial Issue 2	Should principles of challenge by choice be integral to all adventure program experiences?	17
Controversial Issue 3	Does the concept of transfer of learning sufficiently explain the way outcomes of adventure programming are generalized to other areas of participants' lives?	29
Controversial Issue 4	Should there be a professional certification in outdoor leadership?	47
Controversial Issue 5	Should programs be accredited to ensure that they adhere to industry standards?	63
Controversial Issue 6	Should motorized outdoor adventure pursuits be included in adventure programming?	79
Controversial Issue 7	Should individuals with disabilities be fully included in adventure programming?	95
Controversial Issue 8	Should people of color be encouraged to participate in current outdoor adventure programs?	111
Controversial Issue 9	Can adventure programming make a meaningful difference in promoting health and wellness in society?	127
Controversial Issue 10	Does technology compromise the wilderness experience?	145

Part II Contemporary and Emerging Issues in Adventure Programming

Controversial Issue 11	Should extreme sports, such as BASE jumping and other high-risk sports, be included in adventure programming?	165
Controversial Issue 12	Should nonprofit and educational programs be required to obtain permits to use public land?	183
Controversial Issue 13	Should Wilderness First Responder be the standard of care for wilderness leadership?	197
Controversial Issue 14	Should wilderness program staff always accompany their participants?	211
Controversial Issue 15	Should transgender youths be encouraged to favor specialized camps over mainstream camps?	227
Controversial Issue 16	Does Leave No Trace make a difference beyond the scope of backcountry environmental practices?	241
Controversial Issue 17	Are educational reform policies that stress standards and accountability compatible with pedagogical aims and practices in outdoor education?	255
Controversial Issue 18	Are rational decision-making models the most effective method to train novice outdoor leaders?	273
Controversial Issue 19	Is it possible to effectively accomplish the goals of outdoor education through online programming?	287
Controversial Issue 20	Is outcomes-based research currently more important than critical research for the field of adventure programming?	301

About the Editors 317