

CONTENTS

1	Introduction: Movie Magazines, Digitization and New Cinema History	1
	Daniel Biltereyst and Lies Van de Vijver
	Magazines, Digitization and Cinema Historiography	5
	Magazines, the Film Industry and the Cultural Economy	6
	Authors, Stars and Fans	8
Part I	Magazines, Digitization and Cinema Historiography	15
2	Variety's Transformations: Digitizing and Analyzing the First 35 Years of the Canonical Trade Paper	17
	Eric Hoyt, Derek Long, Tony Tran, and Kit Hughes
	The Digitization Process: Post-Production Labor as Philology	19
	Computational Analysis: Using Scaled Entity Search	22
	Distant Reading with Quantitative Content Analysis	24
	Synthesizing Methods and Understanding Variety's Shifts Toward Film and Radio	30
	Conclusion	35

3	Who Knew? Using Digital Trade Papers to Explore Ethnic Programming in American Picture Palaces	39
	Judith Thissen and Paula Eisenstein Baker
	A New Jewish Patronage	41
	Before Broadway	42
	Broadway Discovers the Jewish Passover Crowds	43
	Vaudeville Stars and Sacred Songs for the High Holidays	46
	Competition for the High Holiday Public	48
	Methodological Reflection: The Needle and the Haystack	51
4	Periodical Studies, Intermediality, and Cinema:
	Film in The Listener	57
	Birgit Van Puymbroeck
	Intermedial Periodical Studies	58
	The Listener	61
	Film Criticism in The Listener	65
	Conclusion	70
Part II	Magazines, the Film Industry, and the Cultural Economy	77
5	Gross “Inaccuracies, Misrepresentations, and Exaggerations”: The Motion Picture Industry’s Clean-up of Movie Fan Magazines in 1934	79
	Mary Desjardins
	The Association of Motion Picture Producers, Studio Publicity Directors and Fan Magazines in the 1930s	82
	Hollywood Discourses: Mainstream Journalism vs. Fan Magazines	86
	“Inaccuracies, Misrepresentations, and Exaggerations”:
	Fan Magazines in 1933–1934	88
	Conclusion	99

- 6 “The Great and Important Thing in Her Life”: Depicting Female Labor and Ambition in 1920s and 1930s US Movie Magazines 105
 Kathleen A. Feeley
“Boadiceas of Big Business”: The Hollywood Women’s Press Club and Female Wage Labor 107
“Her Consuming Ambition and Burning Desire”: Joan Crawford and Gender Identity in the Movie Magazines 110
- 7 “The Girl Friend in Canada”: Ray Lewis and Canadian Moving Picture Digest (1915–1957) 127
 Jessica L. Whitehead, Louis Pelletier, and Paul S. Moore
Women Editors of Movie Magazines 130
Ray Lewis: Genesis of a Character 132
Canadian Moving Picture Digest 134
The White Commission 137
Ray Lewis Versus the World 139
Tireless Advocate for a Domestic Industry 143
Industry Honors Lewis as Pioneer 146
- 8 Drumming up Readers: Zonk! African People’s Pictorial and Films for African Audiences in South Africa in 1949 and the Early 1950s 153
 Jacqueline Maingard
Access, Archives and Cinema History in the “Global South” 156
Zonk! African People’s Pictorial and African Jim 157
The Magazine, and the Film Zonk! 161
Zonk! African People’s Pictorial and The Magic Garden (1951) 162
“Two Famous Films” 164
African Film Production’s Film Song of Africa (1951) 167
Drum Arrives on the Scene 168
Conclusions 169

9	Mapping the Dutch Film Magazine Market, 1920–1960	177
	Thunnis van Oort
	Pre-War Era: Westerbaan as a Key Figure	179
	The Cinephile Niche	183
	Movie Magazines During Occupation	186
	After the War: A Challenging Market	187
	Conclusions	191
Part III Authors, Stars, and Fans		199
10	Looking at Movie Fans: On Pictures Published in French Film Magazines of the Interwar Years	201
	Myriam Juan
	Dreaming of Being a Star: Pictures Sent in a ‘Search for a Star’ Contest	203
	Being a Member of a Cinephilic Society: Pictures in the Mail Section of Pour Vous	208
	Pictures of Stars Side by Side with Spectators: The Movie Family Gathered	213
	Conclusion: They Had Faces Too	215
11	Between Hollywood and Babelsberg: Popular Cinephilia in a Dutch Movie Magazine of the 1920s	221
	André van der Velden
	Running a Movie Magazine in an Underdeveloped Market	222
	Modes of Interactive Fandom	226
	Engaging Dutch Movie Fans	228
	“Do You Want to Go to Berlin?”	232
	The Dutch Clara Bow	232
12	Hollywood Imaginaries at the End of the World: Ecran and the Construction of the International Industry from the Periphery	237
	María Paz Peirano
	Chilean Film Magazines	238
	Ecran Magazine	241
	Ecran as a Mediator Between Hollywood and Chile	243

Hollywood Between Modernity and Mistrust	245
Ecran and Hollywood es así (1944)	249
Conclusion	251
13 “How’s Your Sense of Direction?” Using Movie Magazines to Study Audiences’ Perception of Classical Hollywood Directors, 1934–1943	257
Dominic Topp
“Pantheon Directors”	259
“The Far Side of Paradise”	264
Other Directors	268
Conclusion	272
14 “Coming Attractions”: Tijuana Bibles and the Pornographic Reimagining of Hollywood	279
Ellen Wright and Phyll Smith
Histories of the Tijuana Bible	281
Tijuana Bibles as Bridging Episode	283
Tijuana Bibles as an Object and Generic Category	284
Tijuana Bibles Go to Hollywood	287
Tijuana Bibles and Moral Panic	295
Conclusion	304
Index	311