

■ IN BRIEF	7	Pandemic prep ● Biden's super Super Tuesday
■ AGENDA	8	A Brexit budget ● Weinstein sentencing ● Iger's send-off
■ REMARKS	10	Abortion providers may no longer get their day in court
1 BUSINESS	12	HNA was already in trouble. Then along came a virus...
	14	The show must go on! (As long as it's eco-friendly)
	16	Remembering Jack Welch
2 TECHNOLOGY	18	HPE's lengthy court battle with entrepreneur Mike Lynch
	20	European bankers have their heads in American clouds
3 FINANCE	22	You might want the dip—but remember, this is no party
	24	Will bailout darlings Fannie and Freddie go private again?
4 ECONOMICS	26	The market's in no mood for Larry Kudlow's optimism
	29	▼ Why Jaffa stopped growing Jaffa oranges

	31	They're still waiting for the recovery in the south of Spain
5 POLITICS	32	And then there were two: Bernie vs. Joe
	35	Shinzo Abe's government may not survive the coronavirus
+ STRATEGIES	36	How to defend your company from Covid-19
	38	Emotions, when regulated, are welcome in the workplace
	39	Making sure your email goes gentle into that good night
■ PURSUITS	57	As chefs stretch the genre, the noodle is novel again
	62	Opening an eatery? Choose your own adventure
	64	Turn it up to 11: Throwing a wings party, à la Hot Ones
	66	More taste, less waste with whole-fruit chocolate
	67	These spirits are canned—and completely original
■ LAST THING	68	Boeing's other problem

CORRECTION In "Putting a Price on the Boris Bounce" (Economics, March 2), we incorrectly stated that France's gross domestic product grew 1.3% in 2019. The correct figure is 1.2%.

FEATURES

40

Nothing Frustrates Like a Deere

Why it's so damn hard for a farmer to fix a tractor

46

The Headmaster's Headache

Private schools are Britain's poshest export. It can get awkward

52

Barnes & Noble, the Next Chapter

The new hero of the chain's rags-to-riches tale: A hedge fund

MAJETEK
ÚSTŘEDNÍ KNIHOVNA
ČVUT