

CONTENTS

Foreword ix

Brigadier General R. Patrick Huston

Contributors xi

Introduction: New Technologies and Warfare xiii

PART ONE Compliance and Accountability

1. Regulating New Weapons Technology 3

Rebecca Crootof

2. Assessing LOAC Compliance and Discourse as New Technologies
Emerge: From Effects-Driven Analysis to “What Effects?” 27

Laurie R. Blank

3. Leveraging Emerging Technology for LOAC Compliance 45

Eric Talbot Jensen and Alan Hickey

4. Lethal Autonomous Weapons Systems: The Overlooked Importance of Administrative Accountability 69

Laura A. Dickinson

PART TWO Precautions

5. Law-of-War Precautions: A Cautionary Note 99

Sean Watts

6. The Other Side of Autonomous Weapons: Using Artificial Intelligence to Enhance IHL Compliance 147

Peter Margulies

7. High-Tech Civilians, Participation in Hostilities, and Criminal Liability: Reconciling U.S. Perspectives 175

Matthew T. King

PART THREE Distinction

8. Emerging Technologies and the Principle of Distinction: A Further Blurring of the Lines between Combatants and Civilians? 211
Michael W. Meier

9. Who Did It? Attribution of Cyber Intrusions and the Jus in Bello 235
William Banks

10. The Law of Armed Conflict Implications of Covered or Concealed Cyber Operations: Perfidy, Ruses, and the Principle of Passive Distinction 273
Colonel Gary P. Corn and Commander Peter P. Pascucci

11. Invisible Soldiers: The Perfidy Implications of Invisibility Technology on Battlefields of the Future 307
Sephora Sultana and Hitoshi Nasu

12. Attack Decision-Making: Context, Reasonableness, and the Duty to Obey 325
Geoffrey S. Corn

- Index 375