

Contents

Synopsis of Contents

Preface

Notes on Contributors

Introduction

Joan Vincent

1 Affective States

Ann Laura Stoler

2 After Socialism

Katherine Verdery

3 AIDS

Brooke Grundfest Schoepf

4 Citizenship

Aihwa Ong

5 Cosmopolitanism

Ulf Hannerz

6 Development

Marc Edelman and Angeliqve Haugerud

7 Displacement

Elizabeth Colson

8 Feminism

Malathi de Alwis

vi iv CONTRIBUTORS

97 Gender, Race, and Class

Miranda hi Lomnitz

108 Genetic Citizenship

Deborah Heath, Ranya

11 The Global City

Jackie Sasser

12 Globalization

Jonathan Friedman

13 Governing States

David Nugent

14 Hegemony

Gavin Smith

15 Human Rights

Richard Ashby Wilson

viii Identity

Arjun Escobar

xv

Imagining Nations

Abdül Güler

xvi

18 Infra-politics

Steven Gregory

4 "Masias"

Jan C. and Peter T. Schneider

21 Militarization

Catherine Lutz

37 Neoliberalism

John Gledhill

55 Popular Justice

Robert Gordon

69 Postcolonialism

K. Sivaramakrishnan

86 Power Topographies

James Ferguson

107 Race Technologies

Thomas Biolsi

121 Sovereignty

Caroline Humphrey

9	Gender, Race, and Class Micaela di Leonardo	135
10	Genetic Citizenship Deborah Heath, Rayna Rapp, and Karen-Sue Taussig	152
11	The Global City Saskia Sassen	168
12	Globalization Jonathan Friedman	179
13	Governing States David Nugent	198
14	Hegemony Gavin Smith	216
15	Human Rights Richard Ashby Wilson	231
16	Identity Arturo Escobar	248
17	Imagining Nations Akhil Gupta	267
18	Infrapolitics Steven Gregory	282
19	“Mafias” Jane C. and Peter T. Schneider	303
20	Militarization Catherine Lutz	318
21	Neoliberalism John Gledhill	332
22	Popular Justice Robert Gordon	349
23	Postcolonialism K. Sivaramakrishnan	367
24	Power Topographies James Ferguson	383
25	Race Technologies Thomas Biolsi	400
26	Sovereignty Caroline Humphrey	418

27 Transnational Civil Society 437
June Nash

28 Transnationality 448
Nina Glick Schiller

Index 468

Synopsis of Contents

...the background of the debate that globalization has led to claims for multinational citizenship, this chapter considers how neoliberal techniques are remaking the social, social, and moral borders of the nation. The capacity of entrepreneurial figures to manipulate and transform borders into values of trade and production has restructured the value of capital and labor across transnational space, leading to a "splintering" of citizenship. Two alternative interventions to the proliferation of transborder assemblages of human needs are suggested. Strategies can be informed by an ethics of corporate reciprocity on the one hand, or by an informal moral economy on the other, requiring many agents to distribute different kinds of material, technical, and social goods in the interest of achieving a kind of complex equality across the spaces of global capital.

5 COSMOPOLITANISM

W. Hanner

In this essay, Stoer challenges the assumption that the mastery of reason, rationality, and the expected claims made for enlightenment principles have been at the center of political thought since the eighteenth century. She argues that the political and social thought of the eighteenth century was shaped by a different set of assumptions, one that was more concerned with the practicalities of governance and the needs of the state. She examines the work of Dutch political thinkers like Hugo Grotius and John de Witt, who were concerned with the practicalities of governance and the needs of the state. She examines the work of Dutch political thinkers like Hugo Grotius and John de Witt, who were concerned with the practicalities of governance and the needs of the state.

1 ABSTRACTIVE STATES

Ann Laura Stoler

...parental feelings and political allegiance and war urgent efforts Dutch authorities made to educate the affective habits of both.

6 DEVELOPMENT

Marc Edelman and Angélique Hangeur

"Development" is a slippery concept that has attracted attention from a wide range of scholars. This essay explores the Enlightenment and modernist project of development, which was a project of modernization and progress. It examines the work of scholars like Immanuel Kant and Adam Smith, who were concerned with the practicalities of governance and the needs of the state. It examines the work of scholars like Immanuel Kant and Adam Smith, who were concerned with the practicalities of governance and the needs of the state.

2 AFTER SOCIALISM

Brooks Grenville Schoff

Political and economic interests have shaped response to the AIDS pandemic from the outset. Strategies over medicines and resources, and their effects on prevention and treatment policy, are analyzed with special reference to Africa where the author has conducted AIDS prevention research since 1985. The results of these strategies are discussed in the context of the global AIDS pandemic.

7 DISPLACEMENT

Elizabeth Colson

Political and economic interests have shaped response to the AIDS pandemic from the outset. Strategies over medicines and resources, and their effects on prevention and treatment policy, are analyzed with special reference to Africa where the author has conducted AIDS prevention research since 1985. The results of these strategies are discussed in the context of the global AIDS pandemic.

3 AIDS

Brooks Grenville Schoff

Political and economic interests have shaped response to the AIDS pandemic from the outset. Strategies over medicines and resources, and their effects on prevention and treatment policy, are analyzed with special reference to Africa where the author has conducted AIDS prevention research since 1985. The results of these strategies are discussed in the context of the global AIDS pandemic.