

CONTENTS

1 Prologue	1
References	8
2 Being (Un)Ethical in Workplaces: The Theories and the Empirics	13
2.1 Introduction	13
2.2 What Is (Un)Ethical? An Exploration in Terms of the Theories of Ethics	16
2.2.1 The Consequentialist or Teleological Approach	17
2.2.2 Deontological Ethics	23
2.2.3 Virtue Ethics	28
2.2.4 Integrity Approach	30
2.2.5 The Ethical Dilemma	36
2.2.6 Ethical Blind Spots: Unintentional Unethical Behaviour	38
2.3 The Problems of Ethical Decision Making in Workplaces: Issues and Empirics	40
2.3.1 Ethical Decision Making in Workplaces: A “Product of Personal Values, Experiences and the Environment”?	41
2.3.2 Ethical Decision Making in Workplaces: Are Women More Ethical Than the Men?	57
2.3.3 Ethical Decision Making in Workplaces: The Effect of Organisational Crisis	58

2.4	The Glimpses of the Present Study	62
	References	63
3	The System, Intrinsic Dilemma or Inherent Evil: What Drives Us to Be Unethical?	81
3.1	Introduction	81
3.2	The Survey	85
3.2.1	Estimation of Logit and Multinomial Logit Model	89
3.3	The Exploration	91
3.3.1	Do Well-Defined, Properly Conveyed and Strictly Binding Codes of Conduct Exist in Institutions or Organisations?	91
3.3.2	Do the Respondents Differ in Terms of Enjoying Decision Making Power in Their Organisation?	96
3.3.3	Individual Perception About the Concept of Codes of Conduct (or, Ethics) in Workplaces and the Associated Flexibility	103
3.3.4	Individual Perception About the Relationship Between Individual Morality and Maintaining of Workplace Ethics	111
3.3.5	Individuals' Perception of Factors Resulting in Unethical Behaviour in the Workplace	114
3.3.6	Individual Consideration or Botheration While Taking a Workplace-Related Decision	125
3.3.7	The "Right" Response as Is Conceived by an Employee When the Organisation Announces a Decision That (S)He Cannot Agree with on Moral Ground	138
3.3.8	Is It Possible to Convince the System to Accept the Fact That There Exist "Ethically Better Methods of Conduct" than the Existing Ones?	149
3.3.9	How Frequently Do Employees Resist When the System Wants Them to Do Something that Might Violate the Workplace Ethics?	159
3.3.10	How Do the Employees React When the System Wants Them to Do Something that They Usually Condemn as Immoral?	167

3.3.11	Individual Wish for an End Result When He or She Is Compelled to Be Part of a Decision Making Process that They Believe to Have Breached Morality or Ethics	175
3.3.12	Employees' Reaction When Unethical Decisions Are Implemented in Their Organisations, Ignoring Their Suggestions	180
3.3.13	Colleagues Violating Workplace Ethics Regularly: Would the Reactions Be Sharp?	188
3.3.14	Subordinates Being Unethical?: The Challenges	194
3.3.15	Are Colleagues and Subordinates Equally Treated?	199
3.3.16	(Un)Ethical Decisions, Sceptical Colleagues and Responses	202
3.3.17	Decisions, Incredulous Subordinates and Responses	208
3.3.18	Deviation from Workplace Ethics: Reasons to Justify	213
3.3.19	Deciding on the Optimum Course of Action During Periods of Crisis in an Organization	224
3.3.20	Encumbrances in the Process of Adopting an Optimum Decision During Phases of Crisis	232
3.3.21	Optimum Decisions During Phases of Organisational Upgradation	237
3.3.22	Ethical Dilemma and the Optimum Choice of Action	242
3.3.23	Ethical Dilemma and the Factors Constraining Optimum Choice of Action	248
	References	253
4	The Epilogue: Does the So-Called Lucifer Effect Exist?	257
	References	282
	Name Index	283
	Subject Index	291