

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	7
Preface	9
1 From the Woman Question in Science to the Science Question in Feminism	15
2 Gender and Science: Two Problematic Concepts	30
3 The Social Structure of Science: Complaints and Disorders	58
4 Androcentrism in Biology and Social Science	82
5 Natural Resources: Gaining Moral Approval for Scientific Genders and Genderized Sciences	111
6 From Feminist Empiricism to Feminist Standpoint Epistemologies	136
7 Other "Others" and Fractured Identities: Issues for Epistemologists	163

Contents

8	"The Birth of Modern Science" as a Text: Internalist and Externalist Stories	197
9	Problems with Post-Kuhnian Stories	216
10	Valuable Tensions and a New "Unity of Science"	243
	Bibliography	253
	Index	263

Copyright © 1996 by Cornell University

Acknowledgments

All rights reserved. Except as noted in this notice, no part of this book may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording, or by any information storage and retrieval system, without the prior written permission of the publisher. For information on this book, contact the publisher, Cornell University Press, 300 North Zeeb Road, Ithaca, NY 14850-1501.

1 From the Woman Question in Science to the Science Question in Feminism: theory to date published with First paperback Cornell University Press, 1991. Second printing 1993.

2 Gender and Science: Two Problematic Concepts 30

3 The Social Structure of Science: A Feminist Perspective 49

4 Androgyny in Biology and Social Science 82

5 Natural Resources: Calling for a New Approach to Scientific Gender and Gendered Science 111

6 From Feminist Epistemology to Feminist Standpoint Epistemologies 130

7 "Other" and "Othered" Identities: Issues for Epistemologies 151