

1	BUSINESS	28	How U.S. colleges are holding on to Chinese students
		30	These vaccine trials look good—suspiciously good
2	TECHNOLOGY	32	Nigeria's budding tech industry joins the activists
		34	The great Indian mobile phone rollout
3	FINANCE	36	Cathie Wood, star of ETFs, is still betting on Tesla
		38	Jack Ma's loose lips sink a $35 billion IPO
4	ECONOMICS	40	▼ Europe locks back down, and another recession looms

42 Putin has plenty saved for a rainy day. He isn't spending it

■ PURSUITS	64	The post-election quaffs that top mixologists recommend
	66	No cup of coffee should live without this Mexican sugar
	67	Wine and the White House, an unstable blend
	68	Yes, they can: Aluminum-clad designer cocktails
	70	It's not just a jello shot, it's a work of art
	71	Need a quick pick-me-up? Flask and you shall receive

■ LAST THING 72 The polls are closed. The disinformation endures

CORRECTION "A Race to the Bottom" (Technology, Oct. 26) omitted the names of Sea-Kit's partners in winning the Ocean Discovery XPrize. It was won by GEBCO-NF, a 14-nation team that used a Sea-Kit vessel. It also stated incorrectly that Sea-Kit worked with Teledyne Caris to analyze data. Teledyne Caris did the analysis.

■ ELECTION

6 Trumpism's staying power, a guide to gridlock, how to have better elections, and more

FEATURES

46 Business vs. Insurers
Lawyer John Houghtaling is out to make the industry cover lockdown losses

52 The Rise of For-Profit Prescribing
Telehealth startup Hims makes online medications easy—maybe too easy

56 Covid at Its Worst
Nursing homes could have done a lot more to stop the virus