

Contents

List of Figures	vii
Acknowledgments	ix
PART I: ORIENTATION
Introduction—The Ethnography of Tourism: Encounter, Experience, Emergent Culture	1
Naomi M. Leite, Quetzil E. Castañeda, and Kathleen M. Adams
PART II: POINTS OF DEPARTURE
1 {Formation} Always in Process: Edward Bruner, American Anthropology, and the Study of Tourism	49
Nelson Graburn and Naomi M. Leite
2 {Genealogies} On the Emergence of Identity and Borderzones as Key Concepts	65
Kathleen M. Adams
3 {Influence} “So in Effect I Was Studying Myself”: Knowing (Our) Tourist Stories	71
Julia Harrison
PART III: EXPLORATIONS: CONCEPTS AND DEBATES
4 {Authenticity} “Whatever We Weave Is Authentic”: Coproducing Authenticity in Guatemalan Tourism Textile Markets	89
Walter E. Little

5	{The Borderzone} Living in and Reaching beyond the Touristic Borderzone: A View from Cuba Valerio Simoni	107
6	{Constructivism} "I Can Feel Them Now, Even as I Write": Hiking Yosemite Falls with the Emergent Subjects of Tourism Sally Ann Ness	125
PART IV: FURTHER AFIELD: NEW DEPARTURES
7	{Identity, Mobility, Embodiment} "Being a Tourist in My (Own) Home": Negotiating Identity between Tourism and Migration in Indonesia Kathleen M. Adams	147
8	{The Self, Narrative, Borderzone} Beyond Dialogue: Hospitality and the Transformation of Self in Southwestern Madagascar David Picard	167
9	{Contested Sites, Identity, Stories} "Ideologies at War" at Chichén Itzá: An Ethnography of a Tourism Destination Quetzil E. Castañeda	181
PART V: HOMECOMINGS AND FUTURE DIRECTIONS
10	Taking Tourism Seriously: A Conversation with Edward Bruner Michael A. Di Giovine and Edward M. Bruner	207
11	Reflections Edward M. Bruner	233
	Afterword—Beyond Anthropology: Ethnography in Tourism Studies Mary Mostafanezhad and Margaret Byrne Swain	239
	References Cited	249
	Index	279
	About the Contributors	299