Introduction, 1

PART I

Set-Theoretic versus Correlational Connections

1: Set Relations in Social Research: Basic Concepts, 13
2: Fuzzy Sets and Fuzzy-Set Relations, 29
3: Evaluating Set Relations: Consistency and Coverage, 44

PART II

Calibration versus Measurement

4: Why Calibrate? 71
5: Calibrating Fuzzy Sets, 85

PART III

Configurations of Conditions versus "Independent" Variables

6: Configurational Thinking, 109
7: Configurational Analysis Using Fuzzy Sets and Truth Tables, 124

PART IV

Analysis of Causal Complexity versus Analysis of Net Effects

8: Limited Diversity and Counterfactual Cases coauthored with John Sonnett, 147
9: Easy versus Difficult Counterfactuals, 160

10: The Limitations of Net Effects Thinking, 176
11: Net Effects versus Configurations:
An Empirical Demonstration
coauthored with Peer Fiss, 190
