

CONTENTS

List of illustrations	viii
List of contributors	x
Introduction: Researching the far right	1
PART I
Disciplinary overviews	15
1 Political science approaches to the far right Nonna Mayer	17
2 Historians and the contemporary far right: To bring (or not to bring) the past into the present? Nigel Copsey	32
3 Sociological survey of the far right Kathleen Blee and Mehr Latif	45
4 Right thinking: Criminologists on right-wing extremism Barbara Perry and Ryan Scrivens	60
5 Getting inside 'the head' of the Far Right: Psychological responses to the socio-political context Pasko Kisić Merino, Tereza Capelos and Catarina Kinnvall	74
6 Neo-nationalism and far right studies: Anthropological perspectives Peter Hervik	92

PART IIQuantitative approaches and online research 109

- 7 Estimating the far right vote with aggregate data 111
Vasiliki Georgiadou, Lamprini Rori and Costas Roumanias
- 8 Methods for mapping far right violence 132
Jacob Aasland Ravndal and Anders Ravik Jupskås
- 9 Challenges and opportunities of social media research: Using Twitter and Facebook to investigate far right discourses 147
Jasper Muis, Ofra Klein and Guido Dijkstra
- 10 Big data and the resurgence of the far right within the United States of America 164
Peita L. Richards
- 11 Researching far-right hypermedia environments: A case-study of the German online platform einprozent.de 178
Andreas Önnersfors

PART IIIInterviewing the far right 195

- 12 Methodology matters: Researching the far right 197
Amy Fisher Smith, Charles R. Sullivan, John D. Macready and Geoffrey Manzi
- 13 Interviewing members of the white power movement in the United States: Reflections on research strategies and challenges of right-wing extremists 212
Betty A. Dobratz and Lisa K. Waldner
- 14 Life-history interviews with rightwing extremists 225
Bert Klanderfans

PART IVEthnographic studies of the far right 239

- 15 An observational study of the Norwegian far right: Some reflections 241
Katrine Fangen
- 16 Overcoming racialisation in the field: Practising ethnography on the far right as a researcher of colour 254
Vidhya Ramalingam

- 17 Negotiating ethical dilemmas during an ethnographic study of anti-minority activism: A personal reflection on the adoption of a 'non-dehumanization' principle 270
Joel Busher
- 18 Whiteness, class and the 'communicative community': A doctoral researcher's journey to a local political ethnography 284
Stephen D. Ashe

PART VThe significance of place, culture and performance when researching the far right 307

- 19 Studying local context to fathom far-right success 309
John W.P. Veugelers
- 20 Studying the peripheries: Iconography and embodiment in far right youth subcultures 323
Cynthia Miller-Idriss and Annett Graefe-Geusch
- 21 Normalization to the right: Analyzing the micro-politics of the far-right 336
Ruth Wodak

PART VIThe intersection of academic and activist positionalities and disseminating far right research 353

- 22 Getting insights and inside far right groups 355
Chip Berlet
- 23 From demonization to normalization: Reflecting on far right research 370
Aurelien Mondon and Aaron Winter

- Index* 383