	About the Author	361

The compilation of this primary source reader required extensive research in the national archives of Russia and Central Asia, and I would not have been able to conduct this research without the generous funds provided by SUNY Oneonta's O'Connell Foundation, the School of Liberal Arts, and the Department of History at the State University of New York College at Oneonta.

I am grateful for the generous counsel of my colleagues and friends William Schmitt, Mark Matthew Hendley who, while serving their terms as chairs of the History Department at SUNY Oneonta, provided me with tremendous support and valuable guidance in preparing this volume for publication.

Many people helped to make my time researching in Russia and Central Asia a productive experience. I extend my deepest thanks to the archivists and librarians who assisted in my research.

I am especially grateful to my wife Vanessa Ziegler for her understanding and encouragement over the past few years, as well as her editing of the first part of the reader. I am also thankful to my research assistant William Leahy, who helped with editing the second part of the reader.
