

Contents

Preface	viii
Introduction	1
The Antecedents of Film Theory	10
Film and Film Theory: The Beginnings	18
Early Silent Film Theory	22
The Essence of Cinema	33
The Soviet Montage-Theorists	37
Russian Formalism and the Bakhtin School	47
The Historical Avant-Gardes	55
The Debate after Sound	58
The Frankfurt School	64
The Phenomenology of Realism	72
The Cult of the Auteur	83
The Americanization of Auteur Theory	89
Third World Film and Theory	92
The Advent of Structuralism	102

Contents

The Question of Film Language	107
Cinematic Specificity Revisited	119
Interrogating Authorship and Genre	123
1968 and the Leftist Turn	130
The Classic Realist Text	140
The Presence of Brecht	145
The Politics of Reflexivity	151
The Search for Alternative Aesthetics	153
From Linguistics to Psychoanalysis	158
The Feminist Intervention	169
The Poststructuralist Mutation	179
Textual Analysis	185
Interpretation and its Discontents	192
From Text to Intertext	201
The Amplification of Sound	212
The Rise of Cultural Studies	223
The Birth of the Spectator	229
Cognitive and Analytic Theory	235
Semiotics Revisited	248
Just in Time: The Impact of Deleuze	256
The Coming Out of Queer Theory	262
Multiculturalism, Race, and Representation	267
Third Cinema Revisited	281
Film and the Postcolonial	292

Contents

The Poetics and Politics of Postmodernism	298
The Social Valence of Mass-Culture	308
Post-Cinema: Digital Theory and the New Media	314
The Pluralization of Film Theory	327
Notes	331
Select Bibliography	341
Index	369