

Contents

Acknowledgments ix

Chapter 1. Causal Case Studies I

- 1.1. Introduction I
- 1.2. What Is a Case? 5
- 1.3. Plan of the Book 7
- 1.4. Three Philosophical Positions and Case-Based Research II

Chapter 2. Understanding Causation in Case-Based Methods 14

- 2.1. Introduction 14
- 2.2. Different Ontological Assumptions in Causal Case Study Methods 17
- 2.3. The Core of Case-Based Research: Determinism and Asymmetry 19
- 2.4. Causality as Counterfactuals versus Mechanisms 27
- 2.5. Regularity versus Singular Causation 42
- 2.6. Methodological Implications of Deterministic and Asymmetric Causal Claims 44

Chapter 3. Types of Causal Explanations in Case-Based Research 62

- 3.1. Introduction 62
- 3.2. The Types of Causal Claims Being Made in Different Methods 62
- 3.3. Necessary and Sufficient Conditions 65
- 3.4. Causal Mechanisms—Minimalist and Systems Understandings 71
- 3.5. Are Causal Theories and Mechanisms Observable? 92
- 3.6. Conclusions; or, How Do I Know a Good Causal Theory When I See It? 94

Chapter 4. Defining the Attributes of Causal Concepts 95
with Jørgen Møller and Svend-Erik Skaaning

- 4.1. Introduction 95
- 4.2. The Implications of Determinism and Asymmetry for Conceptualization 98

- 4.3. What Does a "Good" Defined Causal Concept Look Like in Case-Based Research? 101
- 4.4. Defining the Attributes That Make Up Causal Concepts—Concept Structure 104
- 4.5. Defining Concepts—A Three-Step Procedure 109
- 4.6. Concluding Guidelines for How to Define the Content of Causal Concepts 117
- Chapter 5. Measuring Causal Concepts 119
with Jørgen Møller and Svend-Erik Skaaning
- 5.1. Introduction 119
- 5.2. Measurement Reliability and Validity 122
- 5.3. Differences in Measurement in Variance-Based and Case-Based Research 124
- 5.4. Defining the Observable Manifestations of Concepts 126
- 5.5. Measuring the Attributes of Causal Concepts 133
- 5.6. Concluding Guidelines for Measurement of Causal Concepts 151
- Chapter 6. Making Inferences in Case-Based Research 154
- 6.1. Introduction 154
- 6.2. Two Categories of Evidence: Difference-Making and Mechanistic 159
- 6.3. Problems with Existing Inferential Frameworks in Case Study Research 161
- 6.4. Informal Bayesian Logic and Case-Based Methods 169
- 6.5. What Is Our Prior Confidence in the Theoretical Hypothesis? 177
- 6.6. The Theoretical Weight of Evidence 182
- 6.7. Linking Propositions with Empirical Material 188
- 6.8. The Collective Body of Evidence—Aggregating Individual Pieces of Evidence 201
- 6.9. An Example of the Aggregation of Evidence in Practice—Tannenwald (1999) 214
- 6.10. Conclusions 224
- Chapter 7. Comparative Methods 227
with Jørgen Møller and Svend-Erik Skaaning
- 7.1. Introduction 227
- 7.2. The Assumptions of Comparative Methods 230
- 7.3. What Does It Mean to Compare? 231
- 7.4. The Tools of Comparative Methods 235
- 7.5. Using Comparative Methods to Find Causes 241
- 7.6. Building Causally Homogeneous Populations 245
- 7.7. Disconfirming Theory Tests Using Comparative Methods 253
- 7.8. Single-Case, Counterfactual Comparisons 260

7.9.	An Example of Comparative Design	262
7.10.	Concluding Guidelines	265
Chapter 8. Congruence Methods 269
8.1.	Introduction	269
8.2.	The Assumptions of Congruence Case Study Methods	271
8.3.	What Are We Making Inferences About?	272
8.4.	Explaining Outcome Congruence Studies	275
8.5.	Theory-Building—Exploratory Case Studies	279
8.6.	Testing—Plausibility Probes and Robust Congruence Case Studies	280
8.7.	Refining Theories Using Congruence	292
8.8.	An Extended Example—Brooks and Wohlforth's Congruence Analysis	293
8.9.	Concluding Recommendations	300
Chapter 9. Process-Tracing Methods 302
9.1.	Introduction	302
9.2.	The Assumptions of Process-Tracing Methods	305
9.3.	What Are We Making Inferences about in Process-Tracing?	307
9.4.	Explaining Outcome Process-Tracing	308
9.5.	Theory-Building Process-Tracing	313
9.6.	Theory-Testing Process-Tracing	319
9.7.	Revising Theories with Process-Tracing	325
9.8.	An Example—Brast's Study of State-Building Interventions	328
9.9.	Concluding Guidelines	335
Chapter 10. Bringing It All Together 337
10.1.	Introduction	337
10.2.	Our Contribution	338
10.3.	Possible Critique and Responses	342
10.4.	Directions for Future Methodological Research	343
Notes 347
References 357
Index 375		