

Contents

1	Reading and Writing in the Digital Age . . . . .	1
1.1	The Current State: A Rapid Change from Paper to Digital Media . . .	2
1.2	The Convenience of Digital Media in Reading and Writing . . . . .	3
1.2.1	The Pleasures of the Kindle: The Convenience of E-readers . . . . .	3
1.2.2	Writing Using Word Processors . . . . .	5
1.3	Overdependence on the Web Has Changed Human Cognition . . . .	7
1.4	The Positioning of This Book . . . . .	10
	References . . . . .	12
2	Various Media and Their Characteristics . . . . .	15
2.1	Paper . . . . .	15
2.1.1	Definition of Paper . . . . .	16
2.1.2	Roles and Types of Paper . . . . .	17
2.1.3	Physical Characteristics of Paper . . . . .	18
2.2	Digital Media . . . . .	21
2.2.1	Display Panels . . . . .	21
2.2.2	Digital Devices . . . . .	23
2.3	Limitations on the Use of Digital Media . . . . .	24
	References . . . . .	25
3	The Ease of Reading from Paper and the Difficulty of Reading from Displays . . . . .	27
3.1	Paper Is the Preferred Medium for Reading . . . . .	27
3.2	Factors Contributing to the Difficulty of Reading from a Display . . .	31
	References . . . . .	33
4	Effects of Presentation Quality in Reading . . . . .	35
4.1	Influence on Reading Speed and Understanding Level . . . . .	36
4.2	Impact on Eye Strain . . . . .	38
4.3	Summary . . . . .	40
	References . . . . .	41

5	Effects of Operability on Reading . . . . .	43
5.1	Various Types of Reading . . . . .	43
5.2	The Cognitive Load of Operations . . . . .	46
5.2.1	The Measurement of Cognitive Load . . . . .	46
5.2.2	The Cognitive Load of Page Turning . . . . .	48
5.3	Overview of Experiments . . . . .	50
5.3.1	Operations Performed While Reading . . . . .	50
5.3.2	An Overall Picture of All Experiments . . . . .	51
5.4	Document Operations . . . . .	52
5.4.1	Cross-Reference Reading of Multiple Documents (Experiment 1) . . . . .	52
5.4.2	Ease of Document Movement and Alignment (Experiment 2) . . . . .	57
5.4.3	Analyzing Window Operation Cost (Experiment 3) . . . . .	61
5.5	Page Operations . . . . .	64
5.5.1	Reading While Moving Back and Forth Between Pages (Experiment 4) . . . . .	64
5.5.2	Reading to Find Answers Within Text Documents (Experiment 5) . . . . .	71
5.5.3	Searching for Photos Within a Photo Book (Experiment 6) . . . . .	76
5.6	Content Operations . . . . .	82
5.6.1	Finding Contextual Errors (Experiment 7) . . . . .	83
5.6.2	Reading from Paper with Restricted Operations (Experiment 8) . . . . .	87
5.6.3	The Position and Orientation of Documents When Reading and Writing (Experiment 9) . . . . .	90
5.7	Mixed Operations . . . . .	97
5.7.1	Reading for Discussion Purposes (Experiment 10) . . . . .	97
5.8	Summary and Discussion . . . . .	102
5.8.1	Paper as an Operation Medium . . . . .	103
5.8.2	Why Is Paper Easy to Handle? . . . . .	105
	References . . . . .	107
6	Ease of Concentration on Reading . . . . .	111
6.1	Inability to Concentrate on Reading in a Digital Environment . . . . .	112
6.2	Digital Environments Inhibiting Concentration on Reading . . . . .	112
6.2.1	Distracting Stimuli Unrelated to Reading . . . . .	113
6.2.2	Links with Hypertext That Disperse Thinking . . . . .	114
6.2.3	Multifunctional Digital Devices Encouraging Multitasking . . . . .	115
6.2.4	The Inconvenience of Performing Operations While Reading . . . . .	119

6.3	People Pay Attention to Concrete Things in Digital Environments and Abstract Things on Paper . . . . .	120
6.4	Summary and Discussion . . . . .	122
	References . . . . .	123
7	Effects of Writing and Drawing by Hand . . . . .	125
7.1	The Convenience of Writing by Hand and Digital Writing . . . . .	125
7.2	Do Word Processors Improve the Quality of Your Text? . . . . .	129
7.3	The Advantages of Taking Notes Manually . . . . .	132
7.3.1	Students Who Turn into Typing Machines in the Classroom . . . . .	133
7.3.2	Handwriting Enables Thinking While Inputting Text . . . . .	136
7.4	Hand-Drawing Sketches Is Superior to Using Digital Drawing Tools . . . . .	140
7.4.1	Drawing Tools Require You to Make Decisions Before Drawing . . . . .	141
7.4.2	Drawing Tools Guide Our Thought in the Wrong Direction . . . . .	142
7.5	Why Are Handwritten Letters Preferred? . . . . .	144
7.5.1	Method . . . . .	145
7.5.2	Evaluation 1: The Personality of Senders . . . . .	146
7.5.3	Evaluation 2: Evaluation of Letter Content . . . . .	148
7.5.4	Evaluation 3: Feelings of Gratitude . . . . .	148
7.5.5	General Discussion of the Three Evaluations . . . . .	150
7.6	Summary and Discussion . . . . .	151
	References . . . . .	152
8	Discussion and Proposals . . . . .	155
8.1	A Brief Review of the Experiments . . . . .	155
8.2	Why Digital Displays Cannot Replace Paper . . . . .	156
8.3	Future Media in the Office . . . . .	158
8.3.1	Using Both Paper and Digital Media Wisely . . . . .	158
8.3.2	Coordination of Paper and Digital Media . . . . .	161
8.3.3	The Ideal Future Office: The Stockless Office . . . . .	161
8.4	Toward Digital Active Reading . . . . .	163
8.4.1	Personal Experiences of Digital Reading . . . . .	164
8.4.2	Suggestions for Supporting Digital Reading . . . . .	168
8.5	Media in Education . . . . .	172
8.5.1	Concerns About the Digitalization of Education . . . . .	172
8.5.2	The Digitalization of Children's Textbooks Should Be Considered Carefully . . . . .	175
	References . . . . .	176
9	Conclusion . . . . .	179
	References . . . . .	181