

Contents

List of tables	viii
Introduction the role of marketing in the growth of the German book markets, 1815–1890	1
1 Separate, distinct, both sluggish: the German book markets at the close of the Napoleonic Wars, 1815–1820	7
2 The regular book market explodes, 1820–1843	45
3 Engines of growth: dynamic and entrepreneurial marketing, 1820–1843	53
4 The mass book market, 1820–1870	78
5 The decline and recovery of the regular trade, 1843–1866	94
6 The book market of the regular trade at mid-century, 1843–1866	118
7 Good times, 1867–1888: the middle- and upper-class book market after mid-century	136
8 The mass book market explodes, 1870–1890	168
Conclusion: the role of dynamic high capitalist marketing practice in the German book markets	190
Index	195