

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements.....	vii
-----------------------	-----

Part I. Introduction

Editors' Preface.....	3
Chapter 1. Author and Work.....	7
Chapter 2. Decoding the Villages of the Fayyum	13
On the Arabic Edition.....	23
Glossary of Measures, Weights, and Monetary Units	24
Map of the Villages of the Fayyum	26

Part II. Edition and Translation of the Villages of the Fayyum

The First Chapter. A general description of the Fayyum	34
The Second Chapter. Account of the Fayyum's climate (mizāj)	36
The Third Chapter. A description of the Fayyum's air and water.....	38

The Fourth Chapter. Explaining the continuous flow of its water even when it is not inundated [by the Nile], and without having any river drawn into it or a canal reaching it	41
The Fifth Chapter. Account of the [Fayyum's] inhabitants and their division into Bedouin and non-tribal people	42
The Sixth Chapter. Account of the deterioration of its canal and the reason for that, and of those villages that have so fallen into ruin that their reconstruction can only be achieved by investing generous sums of money over a long period of time	44
The Seventh Chapter. List of the names of its villages, arranged by the letters of the alphabet for the convenience of anyone consulting it, so as to allow anyone who so wishes to quickly acquaint himself with them	48
The Eighth Chapter. Account of its congregational mosques (jawāmi'), neighbourhood mosques (masājid), monasteries, and churches	53
The Ninth Chapter. Account of its aggregate taxes in specie and in grains, and other taxes	57
The Tenth Chapter. A description of its villages and their fiscal revenues, village by village	62
Bibliography	247
Index of Common Fiscal and Agricultural Terms	253
Index of Villages and Hamlets Described in the 'Villages of the Fayyum'	255
General Index	257
.....	24
.....	28
.....	34
.....	36
.....	38