

Contents

Notes on contributors	vii
Foreword	xi
ANNA KALINOWSKA
1 Confessional diplomacy: a short introduction	1
ROBERTA ANDERSON AND CHARLOTTE BACKERRA
PART I
Papal diplomacy	9
2 The Polish–Lithuanian interregna and papal diplomacy	11
DOROTA GREGOROWICZ
3 Catholics, heretics and the ‘common enemy’: papal diplomacy and the Great Turkish War during the papacy of Innocent XII, 1691–1700	39
BÉLA VILMOS MIHALIK
4 Renewing Roman diplomacy? Irish Catholicism and the mission of Fr Bonaventure de Burgo, 1709–1711	55
CRISTINA BRAVO LOZANO
PART II
Clerics as diplomats	83
5 ‘Not fit nor convenient [to] be sent on embassy in the king’s business’: the diplomatic missions of the runaway Friar Robert Barnes to the Schmalkaldic League and Denmark	85
KATHARINA BEIERGRÖBLEIN

6	A most venerable provisional envoy: Friar Diego de la Fuente's diplomatic missions to Jacobean London, 1618–1620 and 1624	100
	ERNESTO OYARBIDE MAGAÑA
7	The role of confessor-ambassador: the Capuchin Diego de Quiroga and Habsburg politics	120
	RUBÉN GONZÁLEZ CUERVA
PART III
	Religion as a matter of diplomacy	139
8	Catholic ambassadors in a Protestant court: London, 1603–1625	141
	ROBERTA ANDERSON
9	Scottish Calvinists and Swedish diplomacy, 1593–1632: the case of Sir James Spens of Wormiston	160
	STEVE MURDOCH
10	Catholic priests and Protestant chaplains: religion and diplomacy in London and Vienna, 1700–1745	180
	CHARLOTTE BACKERRA
11	Imperial chapels and chaplains: a comparative study of Copenhagen, Stockholm, and Dresden in the later seventeenth century	200
	MARTIN BAKEŠ AND JIŘÍ KUBEŠ
12	Charles XII of Sweden and the Rákóczi uprising in Hungary: the long-lasting legacy of the Protestant cause	222
	GÁBOR KÁRMÁN
13	Afterword	248
	GÁBOR KÁRMÁN
	Index	253