

Contents

Introduction . . . . .	7
The Volhynian Czechs: An Historical Overview . . . . .	9
Emigration to the Russian Empire . . . . .	9
Economic and Social Condition Volhynia . . . . .	11
Emigration to Volhynia Province . . . . .	12
The Czechs in Volhynia from 1868 to 1921 . . . . .	14
The Czechs in Volhynia from 1921 to 1939 . . . . .	20
– Western Volhynia . . . . .	20
– Eastern Volhynia . . . . .	21
The Volhynian Czechs from 1939 to 1946 . . . . .	24
Volhynian Czechs in Czechoslovakia after World War II . . . . .	25
Czechs in the Ukraine in the Postwar Era . . . . .	28
The Idea of Resettlement . . . . .	30
Mala Zubovshczina: The Character of the Resettlers' Original Community and its Inhabitants . . . . .	31
The Course of the Resettlement Programme in 1991 . . . . .	35
Malinovka and the Course of the Resettlement in 1992-1993 . . . . .	43
Resettlers in the Czech Republic: The Character of the Resettlers' Group . . . . .	49
The Course of Adapting to a New Environment and the Degree of Integration . . . . .	51
The Majority's Relationship with the Resettlers . . . . .	59
The Development of Social Relations within the Resettlers' Group . . . . .	62
New Life and Imported Traditions . . . . .	64
A Typology of the Resettlers' Adjustment Process . . . . .	76
Type A . . . . .	80
Type B . . . . .	89
Type C . . . . .	93
Type D . . . . .	96
Type E . . . . .	98
Conclusion . . . . .	100
Notes . . . . .	105
Literature . . . . .	113
Maps . . . . .	118