

Contents

Preface ix

PART ONE

Two Roads Diverged: Ecology in the Eighteenth Century 1

Chapter 1 Science in Arcadia 3

Chapter 2 The Empire of Reason 26

PART TWO

The Subversive Science: Thoreau's Romantic Ecology 57

Chapter 3 A Naturalist in Concord 59

Chapter 4 Nature Looking into Nature 77

Chapter 5 Roots and Branches 98

PART THREE

The Dismal Science: Darwinian Ecology 113

Chapter 6 A Fallen World 115

Chapter 7 The Education of a Scientist 130

Chapter 8 Scrambling for Place 145

Chapter 9 The Ascent of Man 170

PART FOUR

O Pioneers: Ecology on the Frontier 189

Chapter 10	Words on a Map	191
Chapter 11	Clements and the Climax Community	205
Chapter 12	Dust Follows the Plow	221

PART FIVE

The Morals of a Science: Ethics, Economics, and Ecology		255
Chapter 13	The Value of a Varmint	258
Chapter 14	Producers and Consumers	291
Chapter 15	Declarations of Interdependence	316

PART SIX

The Age of Ecology: Science and the Fate of the Earth		339
Chapter 16	Healing the Planet	342
Chapter 17	Disturbing Nature	388
Notes		435
Glossary of Terms		471
Selected Bibliography		474
Index		497