

CONTENTS

Introduction: Fieldwork, Text, and Audience

CAROLINE B. BRETTELL

1

Part I. Contested Texts: Implications for Fieldwork and Rapport

25

1. Unintended Consequences: The Myth of "The Return" in Anthropological Fieldwork

DONA L. DAVIS

27

2. Responding to the Anthropologist: When the Spiritual Baptists of Trinidad Read What I Write about Them

STEPHEN D. GLAZIER

37

Part II. Politicized Texts: Insider, Outsider, and Ethnographic Authority

49

3. Involvement, Detachment, and Representation on Corsica

ALEXANDRA JAFFE

51

4. Fieldwork in Quebec, Scholarly Reviews, and Anthropological Dialogues

RICHARD HANDLER

67

5.	The Student of Culture and the Ethnography of Irish Intellectuals
	ELIZABETH A. SHEEHAN	75
Part III. Mediated Texts: Issues of Representation and Identity		91
6.	Whose History Is It? Selection and Representation in the Creation of a Text
	CAROLINE B. BRETTELL	93
7.	When They Read What the Papers Say We Wrote
	OFRA GREENBERG	107
Part IV. Collaborative Texts: Ethics, Negotiation, and Compromise		119
8.	Is Anonymity Possible? Writing about Refugees in the United States
	MARYCAROL HOPKINS	121
9.	Just Stories of Ethnographic Authority
	RICHARD P. HORWITZ	131
10.	Myths of Objectivity and the Collaborative Process in Life History Research
	SALLY MCBETH	145
11.	The Case of Mistaken Identity: Problems in Representing Women on the Right
	FAYE GINSBURG	163
	Bibliography	177
	Index	193
	About the Editor and Contributors	199