

EDITORIAL INTRODUCTION	viii
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	xxxi
POPPER'S BOOKS	xxxiii

PART I INTRODUCTION

Optimist, pessimist and pragmatist views of scientific knowledge (1963)	3
-------------------------------------------------------------------------	---

PART II MEMORIES OF AUSTRIA

1 Julius Kraft, 1898–1960 (1962)	13
2 Memories of Otto Neurath (1973)	25
3 Preface to Fritz Kolb, Es kam ganz anders (It all turned out very differently) (1981)	31
4 Anti-semitism in Austria: a letter to Friedrich Hayek (1969)	35

PART III LECTURES FROM NEW ZEALAND

5 Science and religion (1940); appendix: Karl Popper on God: interview with Edward Zerin (1969/1998)	41
6 Ideal and reality in society (1940)	53
7 Moral man and immoral society (1940)	62
8 Is there a meaning in history? (1940)	72

PART IV ON THE OPEN SOCIETY

9	Correspondence with Carnap on social philosophy (1940–50)	85
10	Letter to Fritz Hellin on The Open Society (1943)	109
11	Letter to Alfred Braunthal on The Open Society (1943)	112
12	Uniting the camp of humanitarianism (1943–7)	113
13	Public and private values (1946?); appendix: 'Utopianism and the open society'	118
14	The theory of totalitarianism: a talk on The Open Society (1946?); appendix 1: The open and the closed society; appendix 2: The treatment of Germany	132
15	Social institutions and personal responsibility (1947)	143
16	The Open Society after five years: prefaces to the American edition of The Open Society (1948–50)	169
17	Platonic holiday (1948)	182
18	Response to de Vries (1952)	184
19	On The Free Man's Library (1956)	196
20	Letters to Isaiah Berlin (1959 and 1989)	199
21	Historical explanation: an interview (1962/1966)	205
22	Correspondence with Ernst Badian on Aristotle's political views (1965)	214
23	Plato (1968)	219

PART V THE COLD WAR AND AFTER

24	The open society and the democratic state (1963)	231
25	Popper to Hayek on the abstract society and 'inner freedom' (1964)	249
26	The status of science: a broadcast to Russia (1963)	255
27	A note on the Cold War (1966)	262
28	How to get out of Vietnam (1969)	269
29	On For Conservatives Only (1970)	271
30	Was ist liberal? (What is it to be liberal?) (1972)	273
31	On reason and the open society: a conversation (1972)	275
32	For a better world (1973)	288
33	Historical prophecy as an obstacle to peace (1973)	298
34	To Bryan Magee on nationalization (1974)	306

35	Preface to the second Italian edition of The Poverty of Historicism (1975)	308
36	On The New Liberty (after 1975)	312
37	On toleration (1981)	313
38	The importance of critical discussion: an argument for human rights and democracy (1981/2)	329
39	The critical attitude in medicine: the need for a new ethics (1983)	341
40	Response upon receiving the Award of the Fondation Tocqueville (1984)	355
41	On democracy (1988)	360
42	Outline of my views of what matters (1988)	370
43	Historicism and the Soviet Union (1991)	378
44	The Open Society today: its great yet limited success (1991)	383
45	A letter to my Russian readers (1992)	394
46	The communist road to self-enslavement (1992); appendix: Tribute to the life and work of Friedrich Hayek	402
47	Europe now exists (1993)	411
48	The power of television (1994)	413
	NOTES	425
	INDEX	483