

Contents

Notes on Contributors — VII

Ingrid Baumgärtner, Nirit Ben-Aryeh Debby, Katrin Kogman-Appel

Maps and Travel: An Introduction — 1

Part I: Historical Space

Marcia Kupfer

Traveling the Mappa Mundi: Readerly Transport from Cassiodorus to Petrarch — 17

Debra Higgs Strickland

The Bestiary on the Hereford World Map (c. 1300) — 37

Pnina Arad

Cultural Landscape in Christian and Jewish Maps of the Holy Land — 74

Part II: Use and Reception

Ingrid Baumgärtner

Winds and Continents: Concepts for Structuring the World and Its Parts — 91

Katrin Kogman-Appel

Fictive Travel and Mapmaking in Fourteenth-Century Iberia — 136

Patrick Gautier Dalché

Les cartes marines comme source de réflexion géographique au XV^e siècle — 165

Camille Serchuk

Around the World: Borders and Frames in Two Sixteenth-Century Norman Map Books — 189

Part III: Travel into Sacred Spaces

Eyal Ben-Eliyahu

The Travels of the Rabbis and the Rabbinic Horizons of the Inhabited World — 221

Rachel Sarfati

Real and Fictive Travels to the Holy Land as Painted in the Florence Scroll — 232

Daniel M. Unger

Between Nazareth and Loreto: The Role of the Stone Bricks in Caravaggio's 'Madonna di Loreto' — 252

Veronica della Dora

Sacred Topographies and the Optics of Truth: Vasilij Grigorovich Barskij's Journeys to Mount Athos (1725–1744) — 281

Part IV: Word and Images

Larry Silver

Antwerp Civic Self-Portraits — 315

Nirit Ben-Aryeh Debby

Fra Niccolò Guidalotto's City View, Nautical Atlas and Book of Memories: Cartography and Propaganda between Venice and Constantinople — 342

Sandra Sáenz-López Pérez

How to Represent the New World When One Is Not Andrea Mantegna: Sovereigns in the Americas on Sixteenth-Century Maps — 363

Index of Toponyms and Locations — 383

Index of Historical, Religious and Mythological Figures — 395

Index of Modern Authors — 403