

Contents

Introduction: The Book	1
Literature	2
Aims and Method	4
Structure	7
I. CONCEPTS: THE INTEGRATION OF DISABILITY INTO INTERNATIONAL HUMAN RIGHTS LAW
1. Historical Background: Towards a Human Rights Treaty for Disabled People	11
1.1 The Adoption of the CRPD	11
1.2 Disabled People and Human Rights Treaties	18
2. Conceptual Background: Disability in the Field of International Human Rights Law	29
2.1 Disability and the CRPD	29
2.1.1 Different Models of Disability	29
2.1.2 The Social Model and the CRPD	34
2.2 Disability and the International Human Rights System	37
2.2.1 International Human Rights Law	37
2.2.2 Global Policy Making	41
3. Theoretical Background: The Inclusion of Disabled People	46
3.1 Disability and the Autonomous Individual	46
3.1.1 Independence	46
3.1.2 Social Contract Theory	50
3.2 The Inclusion of Disabled People	54
3.2.1 Capabilities Theory	54
3.2.2 Recognition Theory	59
4. Normative Background: The Dis-abled Subject in International Human Rights Law	64
4.1 The Legal Subject in International Human Rights Law	64
4.1.1 The Disembodied Legal Subject	64
4.1.2 The Embodied Legal Subject	71
4.2 Human Diversity in International Human Rights Law	77
4.2.1 The Vulnerable Subject	77
4.2.2 The Dis-abled Subject	83

II. STANDARDS: HUMAN RIGHTS FOR DISABLED PEOPLE AND BEYOND

5. Legal Capacity: A Challenging Priority	91
5.1 The Right to Legal Capacity	91
5.1.1 Prior to the CRPD	91
5.1.2 Article 12 of the CRPD	93
5.1.3 The CRPD's New Emphasis	97
5.2 Implications for International Human Rights Law	100
5.2.1 The Universality of Legal Capacity	100
5.2.2 Closing the Gap	104
6. Inclusive Education: A Hidden Priority	109
6.1 The Right to Education	109
6.1.1 Prior to the CRPD	109
6.1.2 Article 24 of the CRPD	111
6.1.3 The CRPD's New Emphasis	115
6.2 Implications for International Human Rights Law	119
6.2.1 The Universality of Inclusive Education	119
6.2.2 Closing the Gap	123
7. Work: A Needed Priority	127
7.1 The Right to Work	127
7.1.1 Prior to the CRPD	127
7.1.2 Article 27 of the CRPD	130
7.1.3 The CRPD's New Emphasis	135
7.2 Implications for International Human Rights Law	138
7.2.1 The Universality of Work	138
7.2.2 Closing the Gap	141
8. Political Participation: An Ultimate Priority	143
8.1 The Right to Political Participation	143
8.1.1 Prior to the CRPD	143
8.1.2 Article 29 of the CRPD	145
8.1.3 The CRPD's New Emphasis	148
8.2 Implications for International Human Rights Law	151
8.2.1 The Universality of Political Participation	151
8.2.2 Closing the Gap	154

III. IMPLEMENTATION: FROM RIGHTS TO REALITY

9. Participation: 'Nothing About Us Without Us'	159
9.1 Participation of Disabled People in the Negotiation Process	159
9.2 Participation of Disabled People in the Implementation of the CRPD	165
9.3 Participation in International Human Rights Law	169

10. Monitoring: The Role of Independent Mechanisms	174
10.1 National Human Rights Institutions (NHRIs)	174
10.2 Framework Including One or More Independent Mechanisms	178
10.3 Lessons for International Human Rights Law	182
11. Conclusion: From the Margins to the Centre	188
11.1 Context and Main Findings	188
11.2 Integrating Disability into International Human Rights Law	194
Bibliography	201
Index	217