

Cover Story

5 World News

10 Spotlight

46
Classified

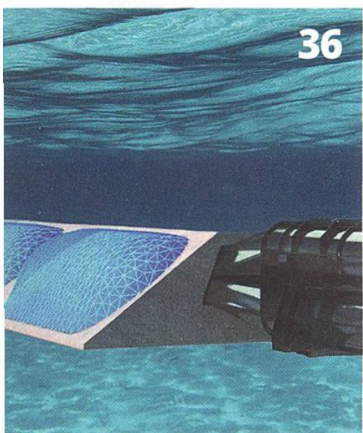

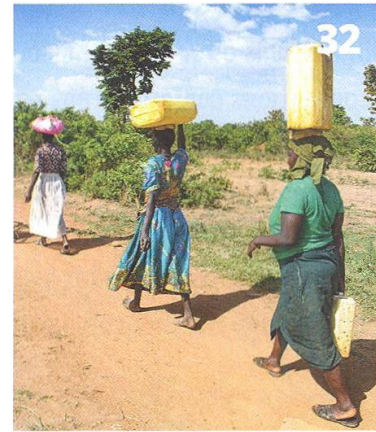

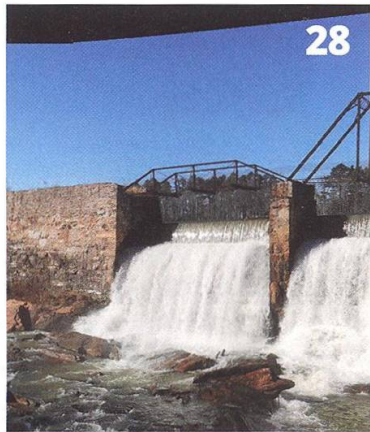

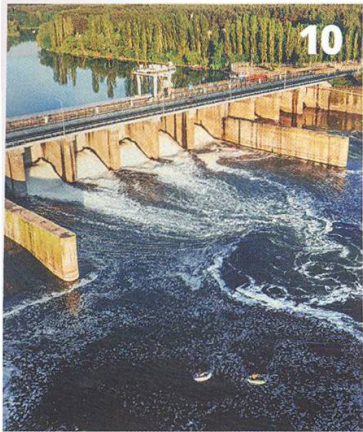

50
Contacts

The 372MW Ulu Jelai hydroelectric project was commissioned in 2016 to meet Malaysia's growing demand for electrical power

International leaders back landmark hydropower declaration; new report says hydropower output to combat climate issues will fall short by 300GW

Leading hydro companies and international organisations declare support for a new sustainability certification scheme for hydropower

features

Development opportunities?

12
Hydro updates

IWP&DC traces developments across the hydro industry

Projects

20
A challenging feat of engineering: The Ulu Jelai project

SMEC shares details on its involvement in Malaysia's 372MW Ulu Jelai project

Spotlight

23
Smart tech in demand

Demand for smart hydropower technology to grow rapidly, according to industry survey

Operation & maintenance

24
Equipment updates

Upgrade and modernisation work in the spotlight

28
Plotting a path to better dam safety at SJWD

Utilities and regulators are partnering up to explore new routes to better dam safety. By David Appleyard

30
Repowering Tummel Bridge

Project to extend the life of Tummel Bridge hydro plant

Hydropower research

32
Hydro exploration

Industry-wide research has recently been focusing on non-powered dams, technological innovation and gender gap analysis

Wave & tidal power

36
Technology to InSPIRE

Companies work in partnership to develop a floating wave and wind powered project. Suzanne Pritchard reports

39
When our renewables just aren't enough

Stuart Murphy explains why he believes marine renewables have an important part to play in our energy mix and the fight against climate change

40
Leading the way

Latest developments throughout the marine renewable energy industry

Investments

44
An investor's guide to hydropower in Africa

To help meet the needs of a rapidly growing population, African nations will become increasingly reliant on hydropower. However, to fully realise its potential, the African hydropower sector needs to see significant investment over the coming decades. A new investor guide to hydropower is hoping to pave the way across the continent for host governments, private investors and funding parties

