

Table of Contents

Preface	xiii
Acknowledgments	xv
About the Author	xvii
Chapter 1: The Problem With Traditional Grading Practices	1
Problems With Traditional Grades	2
#1 Traditional Grades Do Not Reflect Mastery of Grade-Level Skills	3
#2 Traditional Grades Are Used Like Carrots to Get Students to Complete Work	4
#3 Traditional Grades Place the Focus on the Product, Not the Process	4
#4 Traditional Grades Do Not Clearly Align the Grades Entered Into the Grade Book With Specific Skills	5
#5 Traditional Grading Practices Do Not Provide an Incentive to Revisit and Improve Graded Work	6
#6 Traditional Grades Do Not Require Students to Think About Their Learning	7
#7 Traditional Grades Happen to Students	7
My WHY	8
Grades Are Hotly Debated in Education	9
If We Cannot Throw Out Grades Completely, What Can We Do?	10
Blended Learning to the Rescue	12
Chapter 2: Embracing a Partnership Model With Blended Learning	15
From Hierarchy to Partnership	16
Partnership Principles for Teachers and Students	17
Built on Mutual Respect and Trust	18
Shared Purpose	20
Grounded in Reciprocity	21

Prioritize Honest and Open Communication	21
Rely on Regular Feedback to Improve the Partnership	23
Balance Power to Ensure Each Partner Has an     Equal Voice and Choice	24
Committed to Learning Together	24
How Can Blended Learning Support a Teacher–Learner Partnership?	25
Chapter 3: Who Is Doing the Work in Your Classroom?	29
Lack of Time and Exhaustion Are Barriers to Innovation	30
Who Is Doing the Work?	30
Reframe the Way You Think About Your Work	31
Flip the Workflow in Your Classroom	32
Traditional Teacher-Led Workflow for a Written Assignment	33
Student-Led Workflow for a Written Assignment	34
Traditional Teacher-Led Workflow for Math Homework	35
Student-Led Workflow for Math Homework	36
Chapter 4: Encouraging Metacognition in Your Classroom	39
The Power of Metacognition	39
Five Strategies Designed to Develop Metacognition in the Classroom	42
#1 Plan Your Attack	42
#2 Learning Log: Guided Reflection	44
#3 End-of-the-Week Exit Ticket	45
#4 Think-Aloud Video Reflection	47
#5 Track Your Progress With Ongoing         Self-Assessment Documents	49
Building a Metacognitive Practice Into the Classroom With Blended Learning	52
Chapter 5: Flip Learning With Videos	57
The Benefits of Using Videos With Students	58
Video Is Versatile	60
Whole Group Rotation With Video Instruction	60
Station Rotation With Video Instruction	62
Playlists With Video Instruction	63
Addressing Concerns About Using Video in School	64
Creating Your Own Video Content	65
Curating Video Content Online	66

Chapter 6: Goal Setting	69
Motivating Unmotivated Students	70
Goal-Setting Strategies	72
Provide a Goal-Setting Strategy	72
Model Goal Setting	77
Provide Time in Class for Students to Set Goals	78
Set Aside Time to Conferences With Students About Their Goals	78
Chapter 7: Real-Time Feedback Using the Station Rotation Model	81
Troubleshooting Challenges With Traditional Approaches to Feedback	82
Spotlight Blended Learning Model: Station Rotation Model	84
Giving Feedback in Your Teacher-Led Station	85
Tucker Time Feedback Station	87
Real-Time Feedback Tips	91
Tech Can Make Giving Feedback Easier	92
Deciding on the Feedback Format That Fits	95
Mark Barnes's SE2R Strategy for Providing Students With Narrative Feedback	96
John Hattie: Where Am I Going? How Am I Going There? Where to Next?	98
Chapter 8: Rubrics for Learning	103
Rubrics as Roadmaps	104
Rubric Design: Avoiding Common Mistakes	104
Align Your Criteria With Standards	105
Limit the Number of Criteria	106
Use a Mastery-Based Scale	106
Include Clear, Student-Friendly Descriptions	106
Using Rubrics to Further Student Learning	107
Rubrics Can Guide Students as They Work	108
Rubrics Can Encourage Self-Assessment	108
Rubrics Support Reflection and Metacognition	111
You Don't Need to Assess Every Aspect of Every Assignment	111
Single Skill Rubric: Less Is More	112
Chapter 9: Side-by-Side Assessments	117
Ask Yourself, Why Am I Grading This?	118
Select a Blended Learning Model and Design Your Lesson	121

Select Specific Grading Criteria for Your Side-by-Side Assessments	122
Prior to Side-by-Side Assessments, Ask Students to Complete a Self-Assessment	123
Preparing for Side-by-Side Assessments	123
Set Up a Space in Your Classroom for These Conversations	124
Make Paper Copies of the Rubric	124
Decide How Many Minutes You'll Spend With Each Student	124
Use a Timer	124
Select a Strategy for Quick Transitions	125
Conducting Side-by-Side Assessments	125
Set Your Timer	125
Explain the Process	125
Think Out Loud	126
Stay Focused	126
Complete the Rubric	126
Keep Explanations Brief	127
Ask Students If They Have Questions	127
Chapter 10: Students Communicate Directly With Parents About Their Progress	131
It's Unrealistic for Teachers to Communicate With All Parents Regularly	132
Email Updates	132
Publishing Student Work	135
Digital Portfolios	135
Digital Notebooks	136
Student-Led Conferences	139
Preparing for Student-Led Conferences	141
Virtual Student-Led Conferences	143
Chapter 11: Grade Interviews	147
Students Become Active Agents in the Grading Process	148
Apply for a Grade Interview	150
Preparing for Grade Interviews	152
Conducting Grade Interviews	155
The Possibilities of a Partnership Model	159
The Goal: Achieving Balance	161
References	163
Index	165