

CONTENTS

List of Illustrations .....	xi
Preface .....	xiii
Acknowledgments .....	xv
Abbreviations .....	xvii
1 Retrieving Martha from the Margins .....	1
1.1 Re-reading the canonical Martha .....	2
1.2 The apocryphal Martha .....	4
1.3 Gender, authority and text .....	7
1.3.1 Women, text and reality .....	9
1.3.2 Retrieving the interpreter .....	14
1.4 Text and image .....	16
1.5 Conclusions .....	20
2 A Second Peter? Martha in the Gospel of John .....	23
2.1 The raising of Lazarus within the Gospel of John .....	24
2.2 The Story .....	26
2.2.1 Introducing Martha .....	26
2.2.2 The confession of Martha .....	29
2.2.3 "He stinks": Martha at the raising of Lazarus ...	38
2.2.4 Links between the raising of Lazarus and the resurrection of Jesus .....	41
2.3 Sources for the narrative .....	43
2.3.1 John 11 as a narrative based on independent sources .....	44
2.3.2 John 11 as a narrative based on Synoptic sources .....	46
2.4 The raising of Lazarus within the Gospel of John: Some conclusions .....	49
2.5 The story in the hands of its interpreters .....	49
2.5.1 Origen .....	50
2.5.2 Cyril of Jerusalem .....	51
2.5.3 Amphilochius .....	52
2.5.4 Pseudo-Eustathius .....	54
2.5.5 Romanus Melodus .....	56

2.5.6	The story pictured .....	58
2.6	The story in the hands of its interpreters: Some conclusions .....	64
3	A different tomb, a different story: The Epistula Apostolorum .....	67
3.1	The Epistula Apostolorum .....	67
3.2	The Easter narrative in the Epistula Apostolorum .....	71
3.2.1	The appearance to the women .....	73
3.2.2	The commission .....	76
3.2.3	The appearance to the men .....	78
3.3	The function of the narrative and the women in it .....	79
3.4	The significance of the names .....	81
3.5	Origins of the Easter narrative in the Epistula Apostolorum .....	84
3.6	Conclusions .....	93
4	Apostola Apostolorum : Hippolytus on the Song of Songs .....	95
4.1	The Commentary on the Song of Songs .....	95
4.2	The Easter narrative in the Commentary .....	98
4.2.1	The women at the tomb .....	98
4.2.2	The appearance of the Saviour .....	104
4.2.3	The women as apostles .....	108
4.3	Origins of the narrative .....	112
4.4	Martha as anointing woman .....	115
4.5	Conclusion .....	116
5	Singing a new song: Martha in liturgy and hymnody .....	119
5.1	The Ambrosian Missal .....	119
5.2	The Syrian Catholic Fenqitho .....	121
5.3	An Easter hymn .....	123
5.3.1	Martha in the Easter hymn .....	127
5.4	Conclusions .....	136

6	Picturing the myrrhophore .....	139
6.1	A Syrian Gospel Illumination .....	139
6.1.1	The image .....	142
6.2	An Early Christian Amulet .....	146
6.2.1	The image .....	146
6.3	The myrrhophores in the liturgy of Jerusalem .....	152
6.4	An ancient iconographic cycle preserved in Abyssinian art .....	159
6.4.1	Dating the iconography in the manuscripts .....	159
6.4.2	The Easter image in the manuscripts .....	162
6.4.3	A related image in Mozarabic art: Ashburton 17 .....	165
6.5	Martha watching at the tomb of Jesus .....	166
6.6	The myrrhophores in the liturgy of Constantinople ...	167
6.7	Before the fourth century .....	168
6.8	Conclusions .....	173
7	Martha, diakonia and the Gospel of Luke .....	177
7.1	The meaning of διακονία in early Christian texts .....	178
7.1.1	The interpretation of Beyer .....	178
7.1.2	The interpretation of Collins .....	179
7.1.3	Gender and διακονία .....	181
7.2	The modern debate over the interpretation of Luke 10:38–42 .....	185
7.2.1	Martha in the kitchen .....	185
7.2.2	Out of the kitchen and into the church .....	187
7.3	The text(s) .....	190
7.4	The story .....	192
7.5	The story in the hands of its interpreters .....	204
7.5.1	Martha, Mary and the women of Corinth .....	204
7.5.2	Martha and the widows .....	207
7.5.3	Martha and the Good Samaritan .....	209
7.5.4	Martha goes to church .....	210
7.5.5	Mary and the rabbi .....	213
7.5.6	Martha and the prophets .....	214
7.5.7	Martha and Mary as types .....	215
7.5.8	In the hands of the Messalians .....	218
7.6	Conclusions .....	221

8	A Eucharistic ministry for Martha: The Apostolic Church Order and the Acts of Philip .....	225
8.1	The nature and function of church orders .....	225
8.2	The Apostolic Church Order .....	228
8.3	Martha in the ACO .....	232
8.3.1	The interpretation of ταῖς γυναιξὶ διακονίαν καταστήσαι .....	234
8.3.2	The interpretation of οὐκ ἐπέτρεψε ταύταις συστήναι ἡμῖν .....	236
8.3.3	Four reasons for excluding women .....	241
8.4	Sources for the narrative .....	246
8.5	Purpose and function of the text .....	250
8.6	The Acts of Philip .....	258
8.7	Martha in the Acts of Philip .....	260
8.8	Conclusions .....	267
9	Martha as authority figure for early Christian groups .....	271
9.1	Celsus and Martha .....	272
9.2	Mary, Martha and Salome in gnostic literature .....	275
9.2.1	Pistis Sophia .....	275
9.2.2	The Manichean Psalmbook .....	277
9.2.3	First Apocalypse of James .....	282
9.3	Martha as an authority figure in church orders .....	284
9.3.1	The Didascalia Apostolorum and Apostolic Constitutions .....	284
9.3.2	The Testamentum Domini .....	285
9.4	The Acts of Pilate (Gospel of Nicodemus) .....	289
9.5	Conclusions .....	290
10	Gathering the strands .....	293
10.1	Apostola apostolorum .....	293
10.2	Attending to liturgy and iconography .....	296
10.3	Martha as authority figure .....	299
10.4	Martha from the margins .....	301
	Appendix The Easter Narrative in the Epistula Apostolorum ...	303
	Bibliography .....	307
	Index of Modern Author .....	341
	Index of Ancient Sources .....	348
	Index of Subject .....	361