Rolando Villazón's triumphant 2011 return to Covent Garden as the great poetic dreamer, ideally partnered by the "Vermeer-like beauty" (The Independent) of Sophie Koch's Charlotte and Antonio Pappano's "uninhibited affection for the score" (The Telegraph). "There was hardly a corner of the character's soul that Villazón left unexplored" (Financial Times). "His artistry is as astonishing as ever, fusing sound, sense and gesture in an uncompromising quest for veracity" (The Guardian).
