

---

Contents

---

|          |                                                           |           |
|----------|-----------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| Preface  | xi                                                        |           |
| 1 | The History of the Study of Gender in Anthropology | 1  |
|          | Gender as a Cultural Construct                            | 1         |
|          | The Nature/Nurture Controversy                            | 3         |
|          | Roots of the North American Women's Movement              | 5         |
|          | The Women's Movement and the Study of Gender              | 6         |
|          | The Rise of Feminist Anthropology                         | 7         |
|          | Conclusions                                               | 10        |
| 2 | Analyzing Theories                                 | 13 |
|          | Theoretical Orientations                                  | 13        |
|          | Challenging Essentialism                                  | 15        |
|          | Variation or Universal Subordination?                     | 15        |
|          | Negotiation and Resistance                                | 16        |
|          | Cultural Context                                          | 17        |
|          | Similarities or Differences?                              | 18        |
|          | Ethical Choices: What Is Oppression?                      | 19        |
|          | Conclusions                                               | 20        |

|          |                                              |           |
|----------|----------------------------------------------|-----------|
| 3 | The Evolutionary Orientation          | 21 |
|          | Social Evolutionism                          | 22        |
|          | The Feminist Critique of Social Evolutionism | 25        |
|          | Functionalist Explanations of Gender Roles   | 26        |
|          | The Feminist Critique of Functionalism       | 27        |
|          | Twentieth-Century Evolutionary Arguments     | 28        |
|          | Sociobiology and Selfish Genes               | 32        |
|          | Critique of Sociobiology                     | 34        |
|          | Evolutionary Psychology                      | 36        |
|          | Critique of Evolutionary Psychology          | 37        |
|          | The Gene as Cultural Icon                    | 37        |
|          | An Alternative View                          | 39        |
|          | Conclusions                                  | 39        |
| 4 | The Materialist Orientation           | 41 |
|          | Gendered Labor                               | 41        |
|          | Foundations of Materialist                   |           |
|          | Explanations of Gender                       | 42        |
|          | Engels' Evolutionary Account                 | 44        |
|          | Matriarchies                                 | 47        |
|          | Matrilineality                               | 49        |
|          | Patrilineality and Women's Negotiations      | 51        |
|          | Women-Centered Kinship Networks              | 51        |
|          | Modes of Food Production                     |           |
|          | and the Sexual Division of Labor             | 52        |
|          | Private Property                             | 56        |
|          | Public/Private Spheres in State Societies    | 56        |
|          | Critique of the Public/Private Dichotomy     | 57        |
|          | Capitalism                                   | 58        |
|          | Conclusions                                  | 59        |
| 5 | The Psychological Orientation         | 61 |
|          | Freud's Psychoanalytic Approach              | 62        |
|          | Margaret Mead and                            |           |
|          | the Culture and Personality School           | 63        |
|          | Chodorow's Psychoanalytic Model              | 64        |
|          | Critique of Freudian Assumptions             | 65        |
|          | Social Learning Theory                       | 66        |
|          | Gender Identity                              | 66        |
|          | Subjectivity                                 | 68        |
|          | Judith Butler's Performative Subjectivity    | 69        |
|          | Conclusions                                  | 69        |

|          |                                                                                |            |
|----------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 6 | Structuralist Approaches                                                | 71  |
|          | Ideational Approaches to Gender                                                | 71         |
|          | Lévi-Strauss' Structuralist Model                                              | 73         |
|          | Critique of Lévi-Strauss                                                       | 76         |
|          | Ortner's Structuralist Modelof Women's Oppression                          | 77         |
|          | Critique of Ortner                                                             | 80         |
|          | Ortner's Later Work: Practice Theoryand the Structure-Agency Debate        | 80         |
|          | Conclusions                                                                    | 81         |
| 7 | Discourse Analysis: Poststructural andSociolinguistic Orientations | 83  |
|          | Foucault's Poststructuralism                                                   | 84         |
|          | The Feminist Critique of Foucault                                              | 87         |
|          | Discourses of the Female Body                                                  | 87         |
|          | Sociolinguistic Approaches:Gender and Language                             | 92         |
|          | Conclusions                                                                    | 95         |
| 8 | The Self-Reflexive Approach and thePostcolonial Critique           | 97  |
|          | The Roots of the Self-Reflexive Approach                                       | 98         |
|          | Can There Be a Feminist Ethnography?                                           | 100        |
|          | The Problem of Objectivity                                                     | 101        |
|          | Alternative Ways of Thinking about Culture                                     | 105        |
|          | Critique of Alternatives                                                       | 106        |
|          | Conclusions                                                                    | 107        |
| 9 | Gender and Anthropology in a Global World                               | 109 |
|          | Gender Identity in a Global World                                              | 110        |
|          | Uneven Effects of Globalization                                                | 111        |
|          | Gender in the Globalized Economy                                               | 112        |
|          | Gendered Violence                                                              | 115        |
|          | Anthropology and Globalization                                                 | 116        |
|          | Deterritorialization                                                           | 116        |
|          | Conclusions                                                                    | 117        |
|          | References                                                                     | 119        |
|          | Index                                                                          | 127        |