BEDE'S ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY OF THE ENGLISH PEOPLE

AUTHOR'S PREFACE: To the Most Glorious King Ceolwulf	41
---	----

BOOK ONE

1 The situation of Britain and Ireland: their earliest inhabitants	44
2 On Gaius Julius Caesar, the first Roman to reach Britain	47
3 Claudius, the second Roman to reach Britain, annexes the Isles of Orkney to the Roman Empire: under his direction Vespasian subdues the Isle of Wight	48
4 Lucius, a British king, writes to Pope Eleutherus and asks to be made a Christian	49
5 Severus divides Roman Britain from the rest by an earth work	50
6 The reign of Diocletian: his persecution of the Christian Church	50

Contents

7	The martyrdom of Saint Alban and his companions, who shed their life-blood for Christ at this time	51
8	The Church in Britain enjoys peace from the end of this persecution until the time of the Arian heresy	54
9	During the reign of Gratian, Maximus is created Emperor in Britain, and returns to Gaul with a large army	55
10	During the reign of Arcadius, the Briton Pelagius presumptuously belittles the grace of God	56
11	During the reign of Honorius, Gratian and Constantine set up as despots in Britain: the former is killed shortly afterwards in Britain, and the latter in Gaul	57
12	The Britons, harassed by the Irish and Picts, seek help from the Romans, who come and build a second wall across the island. Notwithstanding, these enemies again break in and reduce the Britons to worse straits	58
13	During the reign of Theodosius the Younger, Palladius is sent to the Christians among the Irish. The Britons make an unsuccessful appeal to the Consul Aëtius	60
14	The Britons, made desperate by famine, drive the Barbarians out of their land. There soon follows an abundance of corn, luxury, plague, and doom on the nation	61
15	The Angles are invited into Britain. At first they repel the enemy, but soon come to terms with them, and turn their weapons against their own allies	62
16	Under the leadership of Ambrosius, a Roman, the Britons win their first victory against the Angles	64
17	Bishop Germanus sails to Britain with Lupus: with God's help he quells two storms, one of the sea, the other of the Pelagians	65
18	Germanus gives sight to the blind daughter of a tribune. He takes some relics from the tomb of Saint

	Alban, and deposits relics of the Apostles and other Martyrs	67
19	Germanus is detained by illness. He puts out a fire among houses by his prayer, and is healed of his sickness by a vision	68
20	The two bishops obtain God's help in battle, and return home	69
21	The Pelagian heresy revives, and Germanus returns to Britain with Severus. He heals a lame youth, and after denouncing or converting the heretics, restores the British Church to the Catholic Faith	70
22	The Britons enjoy a respite from foreign invasions, but exhaust themselves in civil wars and plunge into worse crimes	72
23	The holy Pope Gregory sends Augustine and other monks to preach to the English nation, and encourages them in a letter to persevere in their mission	72
24	Pope Gregory writes commending them to the Bishop of Arles	74
25	Augustine reaches Britain, and first preaches in the Isle of Thanet before King Ethelbert, who grants permission to preach in Kent	74
26	The life and doctrine of the primitive Church are followed in Kent: Augustine establishes his episcopal see in the king's city	76
27	Augustine is consecrated bishop: he sends to inform Pope Gregory what has been achieved, and receives replies to his questions	77
28	Pope Gregory writes to the Bishop of Arles, asking him to help Augustine in his work for God	89
29	Gregory sends Augustine the pallium , a letter, and several clergy	90
30	A copy of the letter sent by Pope Gregory to Abbot Mellitus on his departure for Britain	91

Contents

31	Pope Gregory writes to Augustine, warning him not to boast of his achievements	93
32	Pope Gregory sends letters and gifts to King Ethelbert	94
33	Augustine repairs the Church of Our Saviour and builds a monastery of Saint Peter the Apostle. A note on Peter, its first Abbot	96
34	Ethelfrid, King of the Northumbrians, defeats the Irish and drives them out of England	97

BOOK TWO

1	On the death of Pope Gregory	98
2	Augustine urges the British bishops to cement Catholic unity, and performs a miracle in their presence. Retribution follows their refusal	104
3	Augustine consecrates Mellitus and Justus as bishops: his own death	107
4	Laurence and his fellow-bishops urge the Irish to maintain the unity of the Church, particularly in the observance of Easter: Mellitus visits Rome	109
5	At the deaths of Ethelbert and Sabert their successors revive idolatry: on this account, both Mellitus and Justus leave Britain	111
6	Laurence is reproved by Saint Peter, and converts King Eadbald to Christ. Mellitus and Justus are recalled	113
7	The prayers of Bishop Mellitus put out a fire in his city	114
8	Pope Boniface sends the pallium with a letter to Justus, Mellitus' successor	116
9	The reign of King Edwin: Paulinus comes to preach the Gospel to him, and first administers the Sacrament of Baptism to his daughter and others	117
10	Pope Boniface writes to the king, urging him to accept the Faith	120

Contents

11	The Pope writes to the Queen, urging her to exert her influence to obtain the king's salvation	123
12	King Edwin is moved to accept the Faith by a vision seen during his exile	125
13	Edwin holds a council with his chief men about accepting the Faith of Christ. The high priest destroys his own altars	129
14	Edwin and his people accept the Faith, and are baptized by Paulinus	131
15	The Province of the East Angles accepts the Christian Faith	132
16	Paulinus preaches the Word of God in the Province of Lindsey. The reign of King Edwin	134
17	Pope Honorius sends a letter of encouragement to King Edwin, and the pallium to Paulinus	135
18	On succeeding Justus in the See of Canterbury, Honorius receives the pallium and a letter from Pope Honorius	136
19	Pope Honorius, and later Pope John, write letters to the Irish about Easter and the Pelagian heresy	138
20	King Edwin is killed, and Paulinus returns to Kent, where he receives the Bishopric of Rochester	140

BOOK THREE

1	King Edwin's immediate successors abandon their people's Faith and lose their kingdom: the most Christian King Oswald restores both	143
2	Before engaging the heathen in battle, King Oswald sets up a wooden cross: a young man is later healed by a portion of it, and innumerable other miracles take place	144

Contents

3	Oswald asks the Irish to send him a bishop: when Aidan arrives, he grants him the island of Lindisfarne as his episcopal see	146
4	How the Picts received the Faith of Christ	148
5	The Life of Bishop Aidan	150
6	The wonderful devotion and piety of King Oswald	152
7	The West Saxons accept the Faith through the teaching of Birinus and his successors Agilbert and Leutherius	153
8	Earconbert, King of Kent, orders the destruction of idols. His daughter Earcongota and his kinswoman Ethelberga dedicate themselves to God as nuns	155
9	Miraculous cures take place at the site of Oswald's death. A traveller's horse is cured, and a paralytic girl healed	157
10	How the earth from this place has power over fire	159
11	A heavenly light appears all night over Oswald's tomb, and folk are healed from demonic possession	160
12	A little boy is cured of ague at Saint Oswald's tomb	162
13	A man in Ireland is recalled from death's door by means of Oswald's relics	163
14	On the death of Paulinus, Ithamar succeeds to his Bishopric of Rochester. An account of the wonderful humility of King Oswin, who was treacherously murdered by Oswy	164
15	Bishop Aidan foretells a coming storm, and gives seafarers holy oil to calm the waves	167
16	Aidan's prayers save the royal city when fired by the enemy	168
17	The wooden buttress of the church against which Aidan leaned as he died is untouched when the rest of the church is burned down. His spiritual life	169
18	The life and death of the devout King Sigbert	171

Contents

19	Furseay establishes a monastery among the East Angles: the incorruption of his body after death attests to his visions and holiness	172
20	On the death of Honorius, Deusdedit succeeds him as Archbishop of Canterbury. The succession of the bishops of the East Angles and of Rochester	176
21	The Province of the Middle Angles, under its king Peada, becomes Christian	177
22	The East Saxons, who had apostatized from the Faith under King Sigbert, are re-converted by the preaching of Cedd	178
23	Cedd receives the site for a monastery from King Ethelwald, and hallows it to our Lord with prayer and fasting: his death	181
24	On the death of Penda, the Province of the Mercians accepts the Faith of Christ: in gratitude for his victory, Oswy gives endowments and lands to God for the building of monasteries	183
25	Controversy arises with the Irish over the date of Easter	186
26	After his defeat Colman returns home and Tuda succeeds to his bishopric: the condition of the Church under these teachers	192
27	Egbert, an Englishman of holy life, becomes a monk in Ireland	194
28	On Tuda's death, Wilfrid is consecrated bishop in Gaul and Chad among the West Saxons, to be bishops in the Province of the Northumbrians	196
29	The priest Wighard is sent from Britain to Rome to be made archbishop: letters from the apostolic Pope tell of his death there	197
30	During a plague the East Saxons lapse into idolatry, but are quickly recalled from their errors by Bishop Jaruman	200

Contents

BOOK FOUR

1	On the death of Archbishop Deusdedit, Wighard is sent to Rome to be consecrated in his stead: on the latter's death there, Theodore is consecrated Archbishop and sent to Britain with Abbot Hadrian	202
2	Theodore makes a general visitation: the English churches begin to receive instruction in Catholic truth, and sacred study is fostered. Putta succeeds Damian as Bishop of Rochester	205
3	Chad is appointed Bishop of the Mercians: his life, death, and burial	206
4	Bishop Colman leaves Britain, and founds two monasteries in the land of the Irish, one for the Irish, and another for the English whom he had taken with him	211
5	The death of King Oswy and King Egbert. Archbishop Theodore presides over a Synod held at Hertford	212
6	Wynfrid is deposed, and Sexwulf appointed to his see: Earconwald is made Bishop of the East Saxons	216
7	A heavenly light indicates where the bodies of the nuns of Barking should be buried	217
8	A little boy, dying in the convent, announces the approaching death of one of the sisters. A nun, about to depart this life, sees a glimpse of future glory	218
9	Signs from heaven appear when the Mother of the Community departs this life	219
10	A blind woman regains her sight while praying in the convent burial-ground	221
11	Sebbi, King of the East Saxons, ends his days as a monk	222
12	Haeddi succeeds Leutherius as Bishop of the West Saxons: Cuichelm succeeds Putta in the See of Rochester, and is himself succeeded by Gebmund. The succession of the Northumbrian bishops	223

Contents

13	Wilfrid converts the Province of the South Saxons to Christ	225
14	A fatal epidemic is halted by the intercession of King Oswald	227
15	King Cadwalla of the Gewissae kills King Ethelwalh and devastates his province with plundering and slaughter	230
16	The Isle of Wight receives Christian settlers. Two young princes of the island are killed immediately after Baptism	230
17	Theodore presides over a Synod held in the Plain of Haethfeld (Hatfield)	232
18	John, Arch-cantor of the apostolic see, comes to teach in Britain	234
