

CONTENTS

LIST OF MAPS	xiii
PREFACE	xv
1 THE SOURCES	1
Vastness of the nineteenth-century sources, p. 1 – the diplomatic sources, p. 1 – secret negotiations, p. 2 – printed primary sources, p. 4 – the British Blue Books, p. 4 – collections of Prussian, French and Italian printed documents, p. 6 – private papers and memoirs, p. 6 – more extensive sources for parliamentary than despotic states, p. 7 – censuses, p. 9 – social and economic history: the literary sources, p. 10 – the statistical sources, p. 11 – the press, p. 12 – news agencies, p. 16 – photography, p. 16
2 EUROPE IN 1830	19
Significance of the growth in population, p. 19 – situation inherited from the Napoleonic period and the peace of 1815, p. 21 – the restored Bourbons in France, p. 21 – the political scene in Britain before the Great Reform Act, p. 25 – Spain and Portugal, p. 27 – Italy after 1815, p. 28 – the Carbonari, p. 28 – the United Netherlands, p. 30 – the German Confederation, p. 30 – the student societies, p. 32 – absolutism in Prussia, p. 32 – and in Austria, p. 33 – the nationalities under the Habsburg Monarchy, p. 33 – the Scandinavian countries, p. 34 – Russia and Poland, 1815–30, p. 35 – the Ottoman Empire under Mahmud II, p. 35 – Greek independence, p. 36 – Metternich and the Congresses, p. 37 – optimism of the revolutionaries, p. 38
3 POLITICAL IDEAS	40
The place of the political thinkers in the history of the period, p. 40 – origins of nineteenth-century nationalism, p. 41 –

Hegel, p. 43 – Mazzini, p. 46 – Treitschke, p. 48 – relationship between nationalism and liberalism, p. 49 – Cousin, p. 50 – Bentham and his followers, p. 51 – conservative empirical thought, p. 53 – De Tocqueville, p. 54 – John Stuart Mill, p. 55 – T. H. Green, p. 56 – Cattaneo, p. 56 – origins of nineteenth-century socialism, p. 57 – the 'Utopians', p. 58 – Saint-Simon's influence, p. 58 – Owen, p. 59 – women and socialism, p. 59 – Fourier, p. 59 – Considérant, p. 60 – Proudhon, p. 61 – Blanc, p. 62 – Marx, p. 62 – Engels, p. 63 – Bakunin, p. 64 – the International, p. 65

4 THE GROWTH OF INDUSTRY

68

Industrialization and population growth, p. 68 – Europe's technological lead, p. 69 – new industrial methods spread from Britain to Belgium, France and Germany, p. 70 – belated industrialization in Russia, p. 73 – the first railways, p. 74 – the Stephensons, p. 78 – steamships, p. 82 – cheap steel, p. 83 – Bessemer, p. 83 – the Siemens and Gilchrist-Thomas processes, p. 84 – the machine industry, p. 85 – the textile industry, p. 85 – coal-mining, p. 86 – joint stock companies and limited liability, p. 87 – provision of capital by the state in France and Germany, p. 88 – banking and the Rothschilds, p. 88 – the growth of new cities, p. 89

5 AGRICULTURE AND COMMERCE

92

Changes, improvements and difficulties of agriculture before 1830, p. 92 – fluctuating fortunes of agriculture in Britain, p. 94 – the land problem in Ireland before and after the Great Famine, p. 94 – comparative prosperity of the French peasant, p. 95 – poverty on the land in Germany, p. 96 – emancipation of the serfs in the Habsburg Empire, p. 97 – great variety of agricultural systems in the Balkans, p. 97 – the place of the serf on the land and in the mir in Russia, p. 98 – emancipation of the Russian serfs in 1861, p. 98 – agriculture in Scandinavia and the Mediterranean countries, p. 99 – the heyday of free trade, p. 100 – the work of Cobden and the Anti-Corn Law movement, p. 101 – reduction of tariffs elsewhere in Europe, p. 103 – the Zollverein, p. 103 – Guizot's commercial policy, p. 106 – commercial treaties, p. 107 – the Anglo-French Treaty of 1860, p. 108 – tariffs rising again after 1870, p. 110 – business crises and the increasing competition from the USA, p. 111 – Britain's supremacy as a trading nation, as the world's banker and main source of capital, p. 111

6 THE CONDITIONS OF THE MASSES

113

Great variety of social conditions, p. 113 – the Russian peasant before and after emancipation, p. 114 – rural condi-

- tions in the Habsburg and Ottoman Empires, p. 116 – peasant society in Europe generally, p. 117 – poverty and crime in the countryside in Britain, p. 118 – primitive conditions in Ireland, p. 119 – conditions in urban Britain vary with the trade cycles, p. 120 – 1842 in Lancashire, p. 121 – illness and disease epidemics, p. 121 – opium taking, p. 121 – improved conditions in Britain only after 1850, p. 122 – industrial Germany: drunkenness and lack of food and clothing, p. 123 – improvement after 1860, p. 124 – workers' risings in France, p. 125 – conditions in Belgium, p. 126 – the slums in Britain, Germany and France, p. 127 – lack of public health measures, p. 129 – Edwin Chadwick, p. 130 – working conditions in Britain, France and Germany, p. 130 – employment of women and children, p. 131 – Shaftesbury, p. 132 – Germany's record in factory legislation better than France's, p. 134 – workers' resistance movements, p. 135 – trade unions, p. 135 – poor relief, p. 139
- 7 THE LIFE-STYLE OF THE UPPER CLASSES 142
 'Class' and 'interests', p. 142 – land and wealth, p. 143 – the family, p. 144 – eating habits, p. 144 – French cuisine, p. 145 – clothes, p. 147 – fashion, p. 147 – sport and entertainment, p. 148 – popular reading tastes, p. 150 – domestic servants, p. 151 – prostitution, p. 151
- 8 DIPLOMACY AND WARS 153
The instruments of diplomacy, p. 153 – the nineteenth century a comparatively peaceful one for Europe, p. 153 – the regulation of diplomatic practice by the Treaty of Vienna, p. 154 – the 1856 Protocol of Paris, p. 155 – diplomatic services becoming more professional, p. 156 – the use of the telegraph, p. 160 – The failures of diplomacy, p. 161 – non-intervention in 1830, p. 162 – diplomacy and the revolutions of 1848, p. 162 – origins of the Crimean War, p. 163 – of the Franco-Austrian War of 1859, p. 165 – of the Austro-Prussian War of 1866, p. 168 – of the Franco-Prussian War of 1870, p. 170 – The successes of diplomacy, p. 173 – the Concert of Europe, p. 174 – the Belgian Question, p. 174 – the Mehemet Ali crises of 1833 and 1839–41, p. 176 – the limitation of warfare in 1854–56, p. 178 – in 1859, p. 178 – in 1866, p. 179 – and in 1870, p. 179 – the predominance of Germany after 1871, p. 180 – the Eastern Question, 1875–78, p. 181 – the Congress of Berlin, p. 184 – the Dual Austro-German Alliance of 1879, p. 185
- 9 FRANCE: STILL THE SEED-BED OF IDEOLOGIES 187
Political developments: the July Revolution, p. 187 – instability of the July Monarchy, p. 189 – Guizot, p. 191 – reasons for the fall of Louis-Philippe, p. 192 – revolutions of 1848,

p. 193 – political clubs, p. 194 – Louis-Napoleon, p. 196 – establishment of the Second Empire, p. 199 – foreign policy, 1852–59, p. 200 – the ‘Liberal Empire’, p. 202 – foreign policy, 1859–70, p. 202 – the War and the Commune, 1870, p. 203 – the Third Republic, p. 205 – Political institutions, p. 207 – the July Monarchy, p. 207 – the Second Republic, p. 208 – the Second Empire, p. 208 – the Third Republic, p. 209 – Spain, p. 212

10 BRITAIN: THE MOTHER OF PARLIAMENTS
AND THE SOURCE OF INDUSTRIALIZATION 216

Political developments: the Reform Act of 1832, p. 216 – popular risings of the 1830s, p. 218 – Evangelical and Benthamite reforms, p. 219 – Queen Victoria, p. 220 – Chartism, p. 220 – the Anti-Corn Law movement, p. 222 – the Conservative split, p. 223 – the Crimean War, p. 224 – Palmerston, p. 225 – the Reform Act of 1867, p. 227 – Gladstone, p. 228 – Disraeli, p. 229 – the north and the midlands, p. 229 – Scotland, p. 229 – Ireland, p. 230 – British foreign policy, p. 232 – Anglo-French relations, p. 233 – Political institutions: Britain after the 1832 Reform Act, p. 235 – Britain after the 1867 Reform Act, p. 237 – administration, p. 238 – the armed forces, p. 238

11 IRON AND BLOOD: THE UNIFICATION OF GERMANY 240

Political developments: revolutionary movements of the 1830s, p. 240 – Metternich and Frederick William III, p. 242 – revolutions of 1848, p. 244 – Frederick William IV’s refusal of the imperial crown, p. 246 – Prussia’s eclipse, 1850, p. 247 – the Prussian liberals, p. 248 – the crisis over army reform, p. 248 – Bismarck, p. 248 – Poland, 1863, p. 250 – Schleswig-Holstein, 1864–66, p. 250 – the Seven Weeks War, p. 251 – the North German Confederation, p. 252 – Bavaria and Ludwig II, p. 253 – the creation of the German Empire, p. 254 – the Kulturkampf, p. 256 – the socialists, p. 257 – Political institutions: absolutist régimes before 1848, p. 260 – the constitutions of 1848, p. 261 – Bismarck’s use of universal suffrage, p. 263 – the constitution of the German Empire, p. 264 – administration, p. 265 – the army, p. 266

12 A NATION BORN OF CONFLICT: THE UNIFICATION OF ITALY 269

Political developments: the revolutions of 1831, p. 269 – Mazzini, p. 270 – Gioberti, p. 271 – Pius IX, p. 272 – the revolutions of 1848, p. 273 – Charles Albert’s wars with Austria, p. 274 – the Roman and Venetian Republics, p. 275

– Cavour, p. 277 – Piedmont, the Crimean War and the Congress of Paris, p. 278 – Plombières, p. 281 – the war of 1859, p. 282 – Villafranca, p. 282 – Garibaldi and the Thousand, p. 283 – the creation of the kingdom of Italy, p. 286 – the war of 1866, p. 287 – the Roman Question, p. 287 – Depretis, p. 288 – Political Institutions: the absolutist régimes before 1848, p. 289 – the constitutions of 1848, p. 289 – the constitution of the kingdom of Italy, p. 291 – the administrative system, p. 292 – integration of institutions, p. 292 – the armed forces, p. 293

13 EXPERIMENTS IN MODERATION: BELGIUM, HOLLAND AND SWITZERLAND 295

Political developments: Belgium, p. 295 – revolution of 1830, p. 296 – reign of Leopold I, p. 297 Holland, p. 299 – William I and the loss of Belgium, p. 299 – Thorbecke and the Dutch parliament, p. 299 – Switzerland, p. 300 – the struggle between Catholics and democrats, 1830–45, p. 301 – the Sonderbund, p. 301 – tranquillity and stability of Swiss life since 1848, p. 302 Political institutions, p. 302 – the Belgian constitution of 1831, p. 302 – the Dutch constitution under William I, p. 303 – constitutions of 1848: in Holland, p. 304 – in Switzerland, p. 304 – guarantees of neutrality for Switzerland and Belgium, p. 306

14 A SAD ANACHRONISM: AUSTRIA–HUNGARY 309

Political developments, p. 309 – the Metternich era, p. 310 – the revolutions of 1848, p. 313 – Kossuth and Hungarian independence, p. 314 – the Schwarzenberg period, p. 315 – the Bach system, p. 316 – constitutional experiments, 1860–61, p. 317 – the Ausgleich, p. 318 – Political institutions: the régime of Francis I and Metternich, p. 319 – the March Laws in Hungary, 1847, p. 320 – the Kremsier constitution, p. 320 – Francis Joseph, p. 321 – the February Patent of 1861, p. 321 – the bureaucracy, p. 322 – the army and the officer corps, p. 322

15 SOCIETIES IN TORMENT: RUSSIA AND POLAND UNDER THE TSARS 324

Political developments, p. 324 – the reign of Nicholas I, p. 324 – the Polish revolution of 1830, p. 326 – the Crimean War, p. 327 – Alexander II, p. 327 – a political thaw, p. 328 – the emancipation of the serfs, p. 329 – the Polish revolution of 1863, p. 331 – the revolutionary societies, p. 332 – Westernizers and Slavophiles, p. 333 – the Populists, p. 333 – Political institutions: Alexander II's legal reforms, p. 338 – the zemstvos, p. 339 – the bureaucracy, p. 339 – the army, p. 340

16 THE STUBBORN SURVIVAL OF THE 'SICK MAN': THE OTTOMAN EMPIRE AND THE BALKAN STATES

342

Political developments, p. 342 – Mahmud's failure to reform the empire, p. 342 – Greece, p. 343 – the Danubian principalities become Rumania, p. 343 – Serbia, p. 344 – Montenegro, p. 344 – Bulgaria, p. 345 – attempts at reform after 1839, p. 346 – the Eastern crisis of 1875–78, p. 347 – Political institutions, p. 347 – the Turkish reform movement: the Tanzimat, p. 348 – Balkan constitutions, p. 349 – the army, p. 350

17 EUROPE AND THE WORLD

352

Asia, p. 352 – Russian expansion into central Asia, p. 353 – and in the Far East, p. 354 – British India, p. 354 – the Indian Mutiny, p. 355 – The Far East, p. 357 – the western impact on China, p. 357 – the Opium War and the war of 1857, p. 357 – the opening up of Japan, p. 358 – Australasia, p. 359 – the Dutch in the East Indies, p. 359 – Australia and New Zealand, p. 359 – Africa, p. 361 – European ignorance of Africa, p. 361 – the French conquest of Algeria, p. 361 – Egypt, p. 363 – the Suez Canal, p. 364 – missionaries in the African interior, p. 364 – exploitation of the Congo, p. 365 – West Africa, p. 366 – British and Boers in South Africa, p. 366 – the slave trade and its abolition, p. 367 – Latin America, p. 369 – Brazil, p. 369 – Chile, p. 370 – Anglo-French intervention against Rosas of Buenos Aires, p. 370 – the Argentine Confederation, p. 370 – the war of extermination against Paraguay, p. 371 – Napoleon III's intervention against Mexico, p. 371 – Maximilian, p. 372 – significance of the Monroe Doctrine, p. 373 – Anglo-American relations in central America, p. 373 – North America, p. 374 – British and French reactions to the American Civil War, p. 375 – the Trent incident, p. 376 – emigration from Europe to North America, p. 377 – Canada, p. 378

18 EDUCATION, SCHOLARSHIP, SCIENCE AND RELIGION

381

The need to educate the electors, p. 381 – Pestalozzi's influence, p. 382 – state education in France, p. 382 – in Prussia, p. 384 – elsewhere in Germany, p. 384 – in Austria, p. 385 – in Italy, p. 386 – in Switzerland, Holland and Belgium, p. 388 – backwardness of educational system in Britain, p. 388 – Samuel Smiles and 'self-help', p. 391 – education in Russia, p. 392 – the universities of Europe, p. 392 – growing prestige of the natural sciences, p. 395 – Comte, p. 395 – achievements of experimental science, p. 396 – Darwin,

p. 397. – Huxley, p. 399 – the scientific schools of history: Ranke, p. 401 – Burckhardt, p. 401 – Macaulay, p. 402 – Carlyle, p. 402 – Acton, p. 403 – the Catholic Church before 1846, p. 403 – Lamennais, p. 404 – the Church of England and the Oxford Movement, p. 405 – Newman's conversion to Catholicism, p. 406 – Pius IX and the Temporal Power, p. 406 – Döllinger, p. 407 – the Syllabus of Errors, p. 407 – the Vatican Council, p. 408 – papal infallibility, p. 409 – the Old Catholics and the Kulturkampf, p. 409 – the role of the Orthodox Church in eastern political developments, p. 410

19 LITERATURE AND THE ARTS 412

The novel, p. 412 – Manzoni, p. 413 – other Italian and German novelists, p. 413 – Dumas, p. 413 – Hugo, p. 413 – Stendhal, p. 414 – Balzac, p. 415 – Flaubert, p. 416 – Russian novelists, p. 417 – Tolstoy, p. 417 – Dostoevski, p. 417 – novels of social observation: Mrs Gaskell, p. 418 – Zola, p. 418 – Dickens, p. 418 – George Eliot, p. 419 – Emily Brontë, p. 420 – Hardy, p. 420 – humour, p. 420 – Goncharov, p. 420 – nonsense verse, p. 420 – the short story, p. 420 – the theatre, p. 420 – the Romantic dramatists, p. 421 – the poetry of introversion, p. 421 – Leopardi, p. 422 – Lamartine and Musset, p. 422 – Heine, p. 422 – Clare, p. 422 – the later Romantics and the ideological debate, p. 423 – Tennyson, p. 423 – Browning, p. 424 – Swinburne, p. 424 – Carducci and a new classicism, p. 425 – Matthew Arnold, p. 425 – narrative verse, p. 425 – the impact of Baudelaire, p. 426 – the music of the later Romantics, p. 427 – Berlioz, p. 427 – Mendelssohn, p. 427 – Schumann, p. 427 – Wagner, p. 428 – Verdi, p. 428 – Brahms, p. 429 – Chopin, p. 429 – Russian composers, p. 429 – Tchaikovsky, p. 429 – painting, p. 430 – Friedrich, p. 430 – Constable, p. 430 – Turner, p. 430 – Ingres, p. 430 – Delacroix, p. 431 – the Impressionists, p. 431 – the Macchiaioli, p. 432 – sculpture, p. 432 – architecture, p. 433 – the Gothic revival, p. 434 – the rebuilding of Paris, p. 436

20 EUROPE IN 1880 438

Central figures of the period under the influence of an earlier age, p. 438 – the Third French Republic a synthesis of earlier régimes, p. 438 – democratic elements emerging in Britain, p. 439 – dominant position of German Empire, p. 440 – corruption and disillusionment in Italy, p. 440 – Austria-Hungary recovering, but with the nationality problems unsolved, p. 441 – growing unrest in Russia, p. 441 – some nineteenth-century origins of democratic, fascist and socialist movements of the twentieth century, p. 442 – optimism of the period giving way to doubt and apprehension by 1880, p. 443

BIBLIOGRAPHY
MAPS
INDEX

444
461
469

412

LITERATURE AND THE ARTS

19

The novel, p. 412 - Manzoni, p. 413 - other Italian and German novelists, p. 413 - Dumas, p. 413 - Hugo, p. 413
- Scuderi, p. 414 - Balzac, p. 415 - Tolstoy, p. 417 -
Russian novelists, p. 417 - Tolstoy, p. 417 -
p. 417 - novels of social observation, Mrs. Gaskell, p. 418
- George Eliot, p. 419
Early fiction, p. 420 - Hardy, p. 420 - Hemans, p. 420 - Goncharov, p. 420 - narrative verse, p. 420 - the short story,
p. 420 - the theatre, p. 420 - the Romantic dramatist, p. 421
- the poetry of innovation, p. 421 - Leopardi, p. 422
Lauterbach and Missel, p. 422 - Heine, p. 422 -
- the later Romantics and the ideological debate, p. 423 -
Tennyson, p. 423 - Browning, p. 424 - Swinburne, p. 424
- Coleridge and a new classicism, p. 425 - Matthew Arnold,
p. 425 - narrative verse, p. 425 - the impact of Dante,
p. 426 - the music of the later Romantics, p. 427 - Heine,
p. 427 - Mendelssohn, p. 427 - Schumann, p. 427 - Wagner,
p. 428 - Verdi, p. 428 - Berlioz, p. 429 - Chopin, p. 429
- Russian composers, p. 430 - Tchaikovsky, p. 430 - painting, p. 430 - Friedrich, p. 430 - Constable, p. 430 - Turner, p. 430 - Ingres, p. 430 - Delacroix, p. 431 - the Impressionists, p. 431 - the Middle Ages, p. 432 - sculpture,
p. 432 - architecture, p. 432 - the Gothic revival, p. 434 -
the rebuilding of Paris, p. 435

438

EUROPE IN 1880

20

Critical surveys of the period under the influence of an earlier age, p. 438 - the Third French Republic, a synthesis of earlier regimes, p. 438 - democratic elements emerging in Britain,
p. 439 - dominant position of German Empire, p. 440 - corruption and disillusionment in Italy, p. 440 - Austria-Hungary recovering, but with the nationality problem unresolved, p. 441 - growing unrest in Russia, p. 441 - some nineteenth-century origins of democratic, fascist and socialist movements of the twentieth century, p. 442 -
most of the period giving way to doubt and apprehension
by 1880, p. 443