

CONTENTS

LIST OF GENEALOGICAL CHARTS	x
LIST OF MAPS	xi
LIST OF FIGURES	xii
PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION	xiii
1 INTRODUCTION	1
2 THE SOURCES	11
Increase of source material, p. 11 – published papers: government and diplomatic, p. 12 – published papers: political and administrative, p. 15 – the changing nature of sources, p. 17 – sources for economic history, p. 18 – the Reformation, p. 19 – bibliographical guides, p. 20 – popular culture and humanism, p. 21 – the writings of Protestant reformers, p. 22 – The radicals, p. 24 – the Catholic Reformation, p. 25 – contemporary histories, p. 25.
3 ECONOMIC LIFE	28
Rural society in Europe in 1500, p. 28 – the rise in prices, p. 29 – American treasure and inflation, p. 32 – population growth, p. 33 – population in towns, p. 34 – population pressure on land, p. 36 – wool prices and sheep farming, p. 37 – manufacturing and building industries, p. 39 – wages and prices, p. 41 – social consequences of rising prices, p. 43 – social consequences of rising prices: the Continent, p. 44 – rural society east of the Elbe, p. 49 – international trade, p. 50 – effects of overseas discoveries, p. 52 – Antwerp, p. 54 – bankers and governments, p. 58 – was there a world economy in the sixteenth century?, p. 59.
4 SOCIAL LIFE	65
Parish registers and demography, p. 65 – the family, p. 67 – marriage, p. 67 – childbirth, p. 68 – sexual attitudes, p. 69

– family hierarchy, p. 71 – the role of women, p. 72 – public festivals, p. 74 – education, p. 76 – education and the Reformation, p. 78 – literacy, p. 80 – court society, p. 81 – court festivals, p. 82 – war and society, p. 84 – diseases, plagues and hospitals, p. 87 – attitudes towards death, p. 88.

5 TOWNS AND CITIES

91

The social and political structure of towns, p. 91 – the contado, p. 94 – republicanism, p. 96 – vulnerability of city states: Florence, p. 99 – the end of the Florentine Republic, Guicciardini, p. 101 – Venice, p. 103 – Lübeck, p. 106 – the south German cities, p. 108 – the cities in the Netherlands and in France, p. 109 – Castile and the revolt of the comuneros, p. 110 – the towns in eastern Europe, p. 112 – the social composition of town councils, p. 113 – four types of successful cities, p. 114 – Paris, p. 115 – Rome, p. 117 – importance of an urban nobility, p. 118 – fortifications and town planning, p. 119.

6 CHRISTIANITY, POPULAR CULTURE AND HUMANISM

127

The tenor of life, p. 127 – religious sensibilities, p. 128 – popular piety and prophecy, p. 130 – the Jews, p. 132 – witches and necromancers, p. 135 – the Church accused, p. 138 – a ‘total reformation’, p. 139 – Savonarola, p. 141 – the quest for religious safeguards, p. 143 – sixteenth-century humanism, p. 145 – the ‘devotio moderna’, p. 148 – Desiderius Erasmus, p. 149 – Thomas More, p. 153 – the humanists and the Church, p. 154 – Niccolò Machiavelli, p. 155 – the ‘Mirrors for Princes’, p. 157.

7 THE REFORMATION

160

Martin Luther, p. 161 – justification by faith, p. 163 – the Church, p. 164 – friends and followers, p. 166 – the radicals, p. 168 – the peasants, p. 170 – the Peasants’ War, p. 171 – the Münster experiment, p. 173 – Anabaptists and Spiritualists, p. 174 – Luther and worldly authority, p. 175 – culture and community, p. 178.

8 A CONTINUED REFORMATION

182

The ‘magisterial’ reformation, p. 182 – Huldreich Zwingli, p. 183 – methods of reform, p. 183 – moral discipline, p. 185 – The establishment of the ‘reformed’ faith, p. 187 – Martin Bucer, p. 188 – John Calvin, p. 190 – French humanism and ecclesiastical reform, p. 191 – Calvin as reformer, p. 193 – Calvin’s political thought, p. 197 – Calvin’s Geneva, p. 198 – ecclesiastical discipline, p. 201 – Calvin’s social thought, p. 203 – the impact of Calvinism, p. 204.

- 9 THE CATHOLIC REFORMATION 207
 The need for reform, p. 207 – the Jesuit Order, p. 210 – popes and reform, p. 214 – the Council of Trent, p. 217 – popular piety, p. 222 – religion and the state, p. 225.
- 10 EMPIRES 229
 Three empires with universalist claims in the first half of the sixteenth century, p. 229 – the empire of Charles V in Europe, p. 230 – Charles V, Luther and the papacy, p. 232 – Habsburg succession in Hungary and Bohemia, p. 233 – the Habsburg–Valois rivalry, p. 233 – different conceptions of empire, p. 235 – continuing war with France and the Turks, p. 238 – the problems of Germany and the imperial succession, p. 239 – Charles V's abdication, p. 241 – the Ottoman empire, p. 242 – limits of the Ottoman empire, p. 244 – the 'devshirme', p. 245 – weaknesses of the Turkish system, p. 246 – Moscow, the third Rome, p. 249 – the tsars, p. 249 – Ivan IV's conquests, p. 251 – the defeat of the boyars, p. 252 – social and political results of Ivan IV's reign, p. 253 – Russian imperialism, p. 254 – the Portuguese overseas empire and its justification, p. 255 – race relations in the Portuguese empire, p. 257 – the Spanish overseas empire and its justification, p. 257 – the treatment of the American Indians: Bartolomé de las Casas, p. 259 – the New World in the Old, p. 261.
- 11 THE MONARCHIES 266
 Nationalism in the sixteenth century, p. 266 – loyalties, motives and aims in European politics, p. 268 – dynastic policies and the nobility, p. 270 – the unions of crowns, p. 272 – Gustavus Vasa, p. 273 – Poland–Lithuania, p. 274 – the monarchies of western Europe, p. 276 – relations between Church and State, p. 277 – the problems of finance, p. 278 – the sale of offices; loans, p. 279 – taxation: Spain, p. 280 – taxation: France, p. 282 – administration, p. 283 – the personnel of government, p. 285 – salaries, profits, patronage and corruption, p. 286 – State and Church in England, p. 289 – Wolsey and Cromwell, p. 290 – The Henrician settlement, p. 293 – Edward VI and the Church, p. 293 – the Catholic Restoration, p. 295.
- 12 WESTERN EUROPE IN THE AGE OF PHILIP II 300
 The Peace of Cateau–Cambrésis, p. 300 – the spread of Calvinism, p. 302 – the problems of minority and female successions, p. 303 – the Huguenots: Condé and Coligny, p. 304 – Catherine de Medici: the French civil wars, p. 306 – the Massacre of St Bartholomew, p. 307. – Philip II in Spain: the Morisco problem, p. 309 – the crisis in the Netherlands, p. 311 – Alva in the Netherlands, p. 314 – The

- Revolt of Holland and Zeeland: William of Orange, p. 315 – the pacification of Ghent, p. 316 – the unions of Arras and Utrecht, p. 318 – Spain takes the offensive: Portugal, p. 318 – Henry III and the League, p. 319 – English intervention in the Netherlands, p. 320 – the 'Enterprise of England', p. 322 – the problem of a Huguenot Succession to the French Throne, p. 324 – Henry IV and the end of the civil wars in France, p. 325 – the revolutionary parties of the sixteenth century, p. 326 – Spain at war with England, France and the United Provinces, p. 327.
- 13 POLITICAL THEORY AND RELIGIOUS STRIFE 331
The spread of the Reformation, p. 331 – theories of resistance in England, p. 332 – theories of resistance in France, p. 334 – the Covenant, p. 335 – Catholic resistance theory, p. 336 – sovereignty and the divine right of kings, p. 338 – Christianity and political action, p. 341 – evolution of radicalism, p. 342 – the logic of Peter Ramus, p. 344 – Italian heretics, p. 345 – the Socinians, p. 347 – Giordano Bruno, p. 347 – orthodoxy and tolerance, p. 348 – the Elizabethan Church, p. 351 – the Puritans, p. 351 – Parliament, p. 354 – Protestant opposition to the Emperor, p. 356 – the rise of scepticism, p. 357 – Neostoicism, p. 358.
- 14 SIXTEENTH-CENTURY LITERATURE 362
The printing press and literature, p. 362 – poetry in the sixteenth century, p. 364 – the epic, p. 365 – the pastoral, p. 366 – lyric poetry, p. 367 – prose fiction in the sixteenth century, p. 369 – Don Quixote, p. 370 – the picaresque novel, p. 371 – short fiction, p. 371 – Rabelais, p. 372 – drama, p. 373 – the international dimension, p. 376 – popular literature, p. 378 – women in literature, p. 380 – censorship, p. 383.
- 15 FROM RENAISSANCE TO BAROQUE: ART, MUSIC AND SCIENCE 387
Art, p. 387 – the art of the High Renaissance in Italy, p. 387 – neoplatonism and art, p. 389 – breakdown of the social and psychological basis of Renaissance art, p. 390 – artistic rebellion and quest for security – Mannerism, p. 393 – the beginnings of the Baroque, p. 394 – art in Venice, p. 396 – the Renaissance in Germany, p. 397 – the decline of German art, p. 399 – the Netherlands, p. 400 – England: court art and miniatures, p. 401 – French art and the influence of Italy, p. 402 – Spanish art and the Counter-Reformation, p. 403 – Music: the pre-eminence of the Netherlands school of music, p. 404 – music in Italy, development of musical harmony, p. 406 – theories of good and bad music, p. 407 – music and painting in Venice, p. 409 – the invention of opera, p. 409 – Italian music in the Baroque era, p. 411 – music in France, p. 412 – music in England, p. 412 – music in Germany, p. 414 – Science, p. 415 – the world picture in 1500, p. 415 – the contribution of the Renaissance painters, p. 417 – Philosophical and psychological origins of the scientific revolution, p. 418 – the importance of practical problems, p. 419 – classical Greek treatises, p. 421 – Copernicus, p. 422 – Tycho Brahe, p. 423 – Kepler, p. 425 – Platonism and the importance of mathematics, p. 425 – collapse of the medieval world picture, p. 427 – increasing interest in science, p. 428 – the politique spirit and the quest for harmony, p. 429 – Galileo, p. 431.

APPENDIX: SIXTEENTH-CENTURY CHRONOLOGY	438
BIBLIOGRAPHY	466
GENEALOGICAL CHARTS	491
MAPS	503
INDEX	518