

Contents

Preface	vii
CHAPTER ONE
Rural poverty unperceived	1
We, the outsiders	2
Cores and peripheries of knowledge	4
The urban trap	7
Rural development tourism	10
Rural poverty unobserved: the six biases	13
– spatial biases: urban, tarmac and roadside	13
– project bias	16
– person biases	18
– dry season biases	20
– diplomatic biases: politeness and timidity	22
– professional biases	22
The unseen and the unknown	23
CHAPTER TWO	28
Two cultures of outsiders
Two cultures	29
Negative academics	30
Positive practitioners	33
Rural poverty explained?	35
– political economists	37
– physical ecologists	38
Partiality	40
Pluralism	44
The third culture	46
CHAPTER THREE	47
How outsiders learn
Between the cultures	48
Convergence on questionnaires	49
Survey slavery	51

Misleading findings	55
Useful surveys	58
Total immersion: long and lost?	59
Cost-effectiveness	61
Four ways in and out	64
– Ladejinsky's tourism and the green revolution	65
– Senaratne's windows into regions	66
– Reconnaissance for crop improvement	67
– BRAC and the net	69
Conclusions	70
CHAPTER FOUR	75
Whose knowledge?
Knowledge, power and prejudice	75
Outsiders' biases	76
Rural people's knowledge	82
– farming practices	85
– knowledge of the environment	87
– rural people's faculties	89
– rural people's experiments	91
The best of both	92
CHAPTER FIVE	103
Integrated rural poverty
Outsiders' views of the poor	104
Clusters of disadvantage	108
The deprivation trap	111
– poverty	112
– physical weakness	112
– isolation	113
– vulnerability	113
– powerlessness	113
Vulnerability and poverty ratchets	114
– social conventions	115
– disasters	116
– physical incapacity	116
– unproductive expenditure	117
– exploitation	118
Powerlessness	131
– nets	131
– robbery	133
– bargaining and its absence	134

CHAPTER SIX	140
Seeing what to do
Whose priorities?	141
Outsiders' interventions	149
Analysis for action	152
– costs and choices	153
– causes and constraints	154
– finding and making opportunities	156
– political feasibility	160
Power and the poor	163
 CHAPTER SEVEN	 168
The new professionalism: putting the last first
Reversals	168
Spatial reversals	169
Reversals of professional values	171
Reversals into gaps	179
– gaps between disciplines, professions and departments	180
– missing disciplines, professions and departments	182
– neglected modes of analysis	184
– conclusion: gaps as centres	184
Political economy for all	185
New professionals	188
 CHAPTER EIGHT	 190
Practical action
The scope for personal choice	191
Beliefs, values and imagination	194
Practical appraisal for outsiders	198
– tactics for tourists	198
– rapid rural appraisal	199
Reversals in learning	201
– sitting, asking and listening	202
– learning from the poorest	202
– learning indigenous technical knowledge	203
– joint R and D	206
– learning by working	206
– simulation games	207
Reversals in management	210
– styles of communication	212
– transfer policies and practice	213

– enabling and empowering poor clients	214
The primacy of personal action	215
References	219
Index	236
Figures and tables
Table 3.1 Rural people's knowledge of family planning	56
Figure 5.1 The deprivation trap	112
Table 5.1 Reasons given for sales of land and for outstanding debts	122–3
Table 5.2 Reasons given for sales of land by landholding size	125
Table 6.1 Benefits distributed between the rural elite and the poorer rural people	162
Table 6.2 Acceptability of rural development approaches to local and other elites	164
Table 7.1 Professional values and preferences	173
Table 8.1 Changes in some rural producer prices in Zambia 1971–79	195

CHAPTER FIVE

Integrated rural poverty	181
– views of the poor	181
– clusters of disadvantage	181
– the deprivation trap	181
– poverty	181
– physical weakness	181
– isolation	181
– vulnerability	181
– essential services	181
– ethical poverty and ill-health	181
– social conventions	181
– disaster	181
– physical incapacity	181
– multiple disadvantages	181
– indigenous technical knowledge	181
– joint R and D	181
– learning by working	181
– simulation games	181
– learning in management	181
– styles of communication	181
– transfer policies and practice	181