Conception of Swedish Foreign Policy
Compatibility of Neutrality with the Membership in European Union
Marina Bohatová (mbohatova@seznam.cz)

Summary

Neutrality has changed a lot during the historical development, which is obvious due to a huge number of existing definitions. The thesis does not deal with neutrality in juridical sense, but it takes neutrality as a political concept. To be concrete it address Swedish notion on neutrality and its compatibility with the membership in the European Union following the analysis of foreign policy and its changes in the time range 1997 – 2007. The text tries to point out that although the neutrality is a key value for Swedes, it is flexible enough. The aim is to confirm the hypothesis that Sweden is due to changes in the perception of neutrality concept the full member of the European Union and not independent European as many were worried about.
