

Contents

Table of Cases	xv
Table of Legislation	xvii
List of Abbreviations	xxi

Introduction	1
--------------	---

PART I—THE ESTABLISHMENT AND DEVELOPMENT OF NATIONAL HUMAN RIGHTS INSTITUTIONS AND THE SUB-COMMITTEE ON ACCREDITATION

1. The Emergence of National Human Rights Institutions and their Global and Regional Networks	13
1.1 Introduction	13
1.2 The Origins of the United Nations Paris Principles	13
1.3 NHRI Role and Typology	22
1.4 The International and Regional NHRI Networks	27
1.5 UN-level Engagement	30
1.6 NHRIs in Regional Fora	34
1.7 Conclusion	40
2. The Operation of the Sub-Committee on Accreditation in Practice	43
2.1 Introduction	43
2.2 The Functioning of the SCA	47
2.3 The General Observations	49
2.4 The Process of Accreditation	51
2.4.1 Periodic Re-accreditation	52
2.4.2 Submission of Information for Accreditation	55
2.4.3 NHRIs in Transition: Mergers and Structural Changes	56
2.5 Special Reviews and Status Suspensions	57
2.6 How the SCA Makes its Decisions	60
2.7 Deferrals	70
2.8 Challenges to Accreditation Decisions	73
2.9 Developing Practice: David Langtry—Reflections on Ten Years in the SCA	76

PART II—THE SUB-COMMITTEE ON ACCREDITATION AND THE STRUCTURE AND FUNCTIONING OF NATIONAL HUMAN RIGHTS INSTITUTIONS

3. National Human Rights Institutions' Legal Basis: The Enabling Law	81
3.1 Introduction	81
3.1.1 NHRI Based in the Constitution or Legislation	83
3.1.2 NHRI Seeking Improvements to its Enabling Law	86
3.2 The Annual Report in the Enabling Law	87
3.2.1 Introduction	87
3.2.2 Annual Report Adoption Procedure and Consideration by Parliament	89
3.3 Comment	93
4. Who Runs National Human Rights Institutions? Membership, Leadership, and Staffing	97
4.1 Introduction	97
4.2 Ensuring Pluralism	97
4.2.1 Pluralism in the Enabling Law	100
4.2.2 Pluralism in Practice	102
4.2.3 Pluralism in Staffing	105
4.3 Criteria for NHRI Members and Leadership	106
4.3.1 Political Representatives on the NHRI Decision-making Body	110
4.3.2 State Body Representation on the NHRI Decision-making Body	115
4.4 Selection and Appointment of the Decision-making Body	116
4.4.1 Formalization of Selection and Appointment Process in the Enabling Law	120
4.4.2 Content of the Selection and Appointment Process	125
4.4.3 Composition of the Selection Panel	127
4.4.4 Nominations	133
4.4.5 Appointment by Government	137
4.4.6 Delays or Extension of Appointment outside Regular Procedures	139
4.5 Security of Tenure for Board Members and Leadership	142
4.5.1 Length of Term of Office	143
4.5.2 Dismissal of Leadership	144
4.5.3 Changes to Employment Conditions	152
4.6 Full-time Board Members	152
4.7 Functional Immunity for Board Members, Leadership, and Staff	156
4.8 Staffing: Recruitment, Retention, and Secondment	162
4.9 Comment	170
5. National Human Rights Institutions Relationship with the State: Funding and Administrative Autonomy	173
5.1 Introduction	173
5.2 Adequate Funding	177

5.2.1	Funding for Staff	180
5.2.2	Gradual and Progressive Increase in Funding	181
5.2.3	Economic Downturns and Significant Budget Cuts	182
5.2.4	Expansion of Mandate—Funding Requirements	186
5.2.5	Funding Concerns Raised by UN Human Rights Bodies	187
5.3	External or Donor Funding	189
5.4	Financial Autonomy	191
5.4.1	Government Control over the Budget	192
5.4.2	Separate Entry in the National Budget	195
5.5	Administrative Regulation	196
5.6	Regional Offices	200
5.7	Comment	200
6.	Human Rights Mandate—Promotion and Protection Functions	205
6.1	Introduction	205
6.2	Definition of Human Rights in the Enabling Law	208
6.2.1	Limited-mandate Institutions	210
6.3	Promotion Functions	211
6.3.1	Requirement for Promotion Functions in the Enabling Law	211
6.3.2	Requirement to Undertake Promotion Activities in Practice	213
6.3.3	Mandate over the Private Sector	214
6.4	Encouraging Ratification of International Instruments	215
6.5	Protection Functions	219
6.5.1	Complaints-handling Functions	222
6.6	Limitation of Powers for National Security Reasons	226
6.7	Comment	229

PART III—NATIONAL HUMAN RIGHTS INSTITUTIONS AS HUMAN RIGHTS PROMOTERS AND PROTECTORS

7.	The Practice of National Human Rights Institutions as Human Rights Advocates and Defenders	235
7.1	Introduction	235
7.2	Cooperation with Other National Human Rights Bodies	236
7.2.1	NGOs and Civil Society	239
7.2.2	Other National Level Human Rights Institutions	241
7.3	Investigation and Reporting by NHRIs	242
7.3.1	Reporting on Human Rights Violations	245
7.3.2	NHRI Human Rights Activities	255
7.3.3	Monitoring and Visiting Places of Deprivation of Liberty	259
7.3.4	State Responses to NHRI Recommendations	262
7.4	NHRIs' Regional and International Engagement	263
7.5	Comment	270

8. National Human Rights Institutions as Treaty-mandated National Prevention and Monitoring Mechanisms	273
8.1 Introduction	273
8.2 Enabling Law	277
8.3 Funding for National Human Rights Institutions as Treaty-mandated Mechanisms	278
8.4 Effectiveness as a Treaty-mandated Mechanism	280
8.5 Comment	281
9. Challenging Cases	287
9.1 Introduction	287
9.2 NHRIs during a Coup or National Emergency	288
9.3 NHRIs in Conflict Zones	294
9.4 Situations of Gross Violations of Human Rights	298
9.5 NHRIs under Threat of Harm	301
9.6 NHRIs where Rule of Law Is under Threat	302
9.6.1 Hungary	303
9.6.2 Poland	306
9.7 Comment	309
10. Losing A-status: Special Reviews and Downgrading	311
10.1 Introduction	311
10.2 Failure to Address Serious Human Rights Issues	315
10.2.1 Azerbaijan	315
10.2.2 Mauritania	319
10.2.3 Nicaragua	322
10.2.4 Paraguay	326
10.3 Other Cases of Downgrading	328
10.3.1 Greece	328
10.3.2 Senegal	330
10.3.3 Norway	331
10.4 Comment	332
11. Looking Forward—the Sub-Committee on Accreditation and National Human Rights Institutions	335
11.1 The Sub-Committee on Accreditation	335
11.2 The SCA and NHRI Effectiveness and Independence	336
11.3 Protecting the NHRI Name	339
11.4 The Future of the SCA	341
11.5 Final Thoughts	344
Bibliography	347
Index	365