

Contents

Acknowledgments vii

Maps xi

Tables and Charts xiii

Introduction xv

STRATEGY AND ECONOMICS IN THE PREINDUSTRIAL WORLD

1.

The Rise of the Western World 3

Ming China 4

The Muslim World 9

Two Outsiders—Japan and Russia 14

The “European Miracle” 16

2.

The Habsburg Bid for Mastery, 1519–1659 31

The Meaning and Chronology of the Struggle 32

Strengths and Weaknesses of the Habsburg Bloc 41

International Comparisons 55

War, Money, and the Nation-State 70

3.

Finance, Geography, and the Winning of Wars, 1660–1815 73

The “Financial Revolution” 76

Geopolitics 86

The Winning of Wars, 1660–1763 100

The Winning of Wars, 1763–1815 115

STRATEGY AND ECONOMICS IN THE INDUSTRIAL ERA

4.

Industrialization and the Shifting Global Balances, 1815–1885 143

The Eclipse of the Non-European World 147

Britain as Hegemon? 151

The “Middle Powers” 158

The Crimean War and the Erosion of Russian Power 170

The United States and the Civil War	178
The Wars of German Unification	182
Conclusions	191

5.

The Coming of a Bipolar World and the Crisis of the "Middle Powers": Part One, 1885-1918	194
The Shifting Balance of World Forces	198
The Position of the Powers, 1885-1914	202
Alliances and the Drift to War, 1890-1914	249
Total War and the Power Balances, 1914-1918	256

6.

The Coming of a Bipolar World and the Crisis of the "Middle Powers": Part Two, 1919-1942	275
The Postwar International Order	275
The Challengers	291
The Offstage Superpowers	320
The Unfolding Crisis, 1931-1942	333

STRATEGY AND ECONOMICS TODAY AND TOMORROW

7.

Stability and Change in a Bipolar World, 1943-1980	347
"The Proper Application of Overwhelming Force"	347
The New Strategic Landscape	357
The Cold War and the Third World	373
The Fissuring of the Bipolar World	395
The Changing Economic Balances, 1950 to 1980	413

8.

To the Twenty-first Century	438
History and Speculation	438
China's Balancing Act	447
The Japanese Dilemma	458
The EEC—Potential and Problems	471
The Soviet Union and Its "Contradictions"	488
The United States: The Problem of Number One in Relative Decline	514

Epilogue 536

Notes 541

Bibliography 625

Index 663