

Contents

Preface	vii
Acknowledgments	xi
PART I: Elements of Social Research	1
1. What Is (and Is Not) Social Research?	5
Introduction	5
Some Conventional Views of Social Research	9
Social Research and Other Ways of Representing Social Life	19
How Social Research Differs	24
Conclusion	31
2. The Goals of Social Research	33
Introduction	33
Seven Main Goals	36
The Link Between Goals and Strategies	50
The Social Nature of Social Research	55
3. The Process of Social Research: Ideas and Evidence	57
Introduction	57
The Interpretive Model of Social Research	59
Processes and Strategies of Social Research	76
The Challenge of Social Research	78
4. The Ethics of Social Research	79
Introduction	79
Ethical Dilemmas and Failures	81
The Troubled History of Human Subjects Research	81
The Current Ethical Standards and Institutional Oversight	86
Ethical and Professional Dilemmas Facing Social Researchers	91
The Problem of Representation	104
Conclusion	105

PART II: Strategies of Social Research	109
5. Using Qualitative Methods to Study Commonalities	111
Introduction	111
The Goals of Qualitative Research	113
The Process of Qualitative Research	116
Using Qualitative Methods	122
The Study of a Single Case	133
Conclusion	134
6. Using Comparative Methods to Study Diversity	135
Introduction	135
Contrasts With Other Research Strategies	137
The Goals of Comparative Research	138
The Process of Comparative Research	143
Using Comparative Methods	146
Conclusion	160
7. Using Quantitative Methods to Study Covariation	163
Introduction	163
The Goals of Quantitative Research	165
Contrasts With Other Research Strategies	169
The Process of Quantitative Research	171
Using Quantitative Methods	179
Conclusion	187
Afterword: The Promise of Social Research	189
with Mary Driscoll
Appendix: Computing Correlation Coefficients	201
References	211
Glossary/Index	219
About the Authors	235