

Contents

About the Authors	xiii
Foreword	xiv
1 Introduction: The Intellectualization of Method	1
Ways of explanation and understanding	4
Qualitative and quantitative methods	8
Reflective/reflexive research	10
Four elements in reflective research	13
Layout of the book	15
Notes	16
2 (Post-)Positivism, Social Constructionism, Neorealism: Three Reference Points in the Philosophy of Science	19
Positivism and beyond	21
Critics of positivism	22
Theory vs empirical 'facts': verification, falsification, and beyond	25
Social constructionism	29
Berger and Luckmann: reality as a social construction	30
Gergen: a persistent critic of positivism	37
Latour and actor-network theory: the 'second wave' of social constructionism	38
The variation of social constructionism	41
Critique of social constructionism	43
Neorealism	47
Critical realism	48
Assemblage theory: DeLanda	54
Critique	58
Brief comparison	64
Final words	65
Notes	66

Data-Oriented Methods: Empiricist Techniques and Procedures	68
Grounded theory	68
Roots	69
Theory generation, induction, qualitative data	72
The theory criterion: practical utility	76
Data and sources of data	77
Coding: from data to categories	79
Theoretical sampling	85
From categories to theory	87
Substantive and formal grounded theory	89
Conclusion on Glaser and Strauss's grounded theory	91
Schism	94
Epilogue	95
Ethnomethodology	97
Roots: phenomenology	97
Ethnomethodological research	99
Conversation analysis	104
A critique	105
Inductive ethnography	107
Summary	110
Notes	111
Hermeneutics: Interpretation and Insight	115
Roots	116
Objectivist hermeneutics	119
Alethic hermeneutics	120
Hermeneutical interpretation – a reconstruction	122
Pattern of interpretation	125
Text	126
Dialogue	127
Sub-interpretation	128
Heidegger's hermeneutic canons	132
Canon 1. The hermeneutic autonomy of the object	132
Canon 2. The coherence of meaning (the principle of totality)	132
Canon 3. The actuality of understanding	133
Canon 4. The hermeneutic correspondence of meaning (adequacy of meaning in understanding)	134
Application: historiographic method (source criticism)	134
Remnants and narrating sources	137
Authenticity	138

Bias	139
Distance and dependence	141
Empathy	142
Source criticism: final words	143
Existential hermeneutics: back to basics	146
Being-in-the-world	146
The structure of care	146
Understanding	148
The fusion of horizons	149
Knocking at the text	151
The hidden basic question of the text	152
Poetic hermeneutics	153
Metaphors	155
Narrative	158
The hermeneutics of suspicion	160
Geertz's hermeneutic ethnography	161
Integration	164
Critique	166
Summary	172
Notes	173
5 Critical Theory: The Political and Ideological Dimension	179
On the critical theory of the Frankfurt school	181
Origins and early development	181
Cultural pessimism and the critique of rationality	182
Critically constructive variants of critical theory	183
Habermas	184
Technocracy and the colonization of the lifeworld	184
Habermas's theory of communicative action	186
Critique of Habermas's theory of communication	190
Critical theory beyond Habermas: the third and fourth generation	192
Cognitive interest and epistemology	194
Comparison between Habermas and early critical theory	197
Critical theory and various political positions	198
Critical theory in relation to positions on the left and right	198
A minimal version of critical research	201
Methodological implications	202
Critical theory and empirical research	202
The research question	203
The role of empirical material	205
The importance of theoretical frames of reference	207

Interpretations	208
Negations	210
Critical ethnography and other forms of critical qualitative research	213
Illustration: study of a workplace	215
Summary: critical theory as triple hermeneutics	217
Notes	220
Poststructuralism and Postmodernism: Destabilizing Subject and Text	222
Variants of poststructuralism and postmodernism	224
Derrida and deconstruction	229
Deconstruction	229
Différance and the metaphysics of presence	231
Freedom from references	234
The play with signs and the market	234
The downfall of the grand narratives	237
Criticism of the (humanistic) subject	241
The researcher as author	245
Empirical illustration	249
Critique of postmodernism and poststructuralism	252
Lack of constructivity	253
Linguistic and textual reductionism	255
The Sokal affair	259
Final comment on the critique	260
Implications for qualitative method	261
Pluralism	263
A well-grounded process of exclusion	265
Cautious processes of interacting with empirical material	267
Avoiding totalizing theory	268
Authorship and linguistic sensitivity	269
Research and the micropolitics of the text	271
Summary of pragmatic postmodern methodological principles	272
Final word	273
Notes	275
Language/Gender/Power: Discourse Analysis, Feminism and Genealogy	279
Discourse analysis	281
Criticism of traditional views of language in research	281

Discourse-analytical research	285
Critique and evaluation of discourse analysis	288
Feminism	290
The gender-as-variable approach	292
Research from a feminist standpoint	293
Poststructural feminism	295
Feminism and method	297
Critical discussion of feminism	300
On gender in non-feminist research	302
Genealogical method: Foucault	305
Power and knowledge	307
Some methodological principles	311
The self and the ethics	312
Critical views	313
Some general implications for method	315
Final words	317
Notes	319
8 On Reflexive Interpretation: The Play of Interpretive Levels	321
The four orientations in slightly ironical terms	322
Methodological strategies: resignation and linguistic reductionism	323
On reflection	326
Reflexive interpretation	328
Breadth and variation in interpretation	328
On creativity and extensive reading	332
On the role of metatheory	334
Considering various directions and reversals	337
Summary	339
Notes	340
9 Applications of Reflexive Methodology: Illustrations	343
Methodological configurations in reflexive interpretation	343
Illustrations of reflexive interpretations	345
Empirical example 1: an advertising guru talks	346
Interpretations	347
Empirical example 2: changes in public sector organizations	355
Final comment on the two examples	363
Summary	363
Notes	364

10 Applications of Reflexive Methodology: Criteria and Strategies	365
Criteria for qualitative research	366
Some recent views	366
Empirical material as argument	369
Criteria for empirical research	370
Richness in points	372
Reflexive interpretation and relativism	374
Metaphors for research	376
Two kinds of emphasis in reflexive research	380
Identifying and challenging assumptions: reflexive problematization	382
1. Identifying a domain of literature for assumption- challenging investigations	384
2. Identifying assumptions underlying the chosen domain of literature	385
3. Articulating implicit assumptions	385
4. Evaluating articulated assumptions	385
5. Developing an alternative assumption ground	385
6. Considering assumptions in relation to the audience	386
7. Evaluating the alternative assumption ground	386
Mystery creation	387
Constructing a mystery	389
Solving the mystery	390
Three illustrations	390
Some concrete suggestions	392
Final comment: research as a provisionally rational project	395
Notes	397
References	399
Index	429