

Contents

A Note on Israel Zinberg	/	ix
Foreword	/	xi
Transliteration of Hebrew Terms	/	xiii
Abbreviations	/	xv

PART V: ITALIAN JEWRY IN THE RENAISSANCE ERA

Chapter One: ITALIAN JEWRY IN THE RENAISSANCE ERA; JEHUDAH ABRAVANEL / 3

The Renaissance era and the Jews—Italian Jewry and its unique way of life—Mystical currents—Menaḥem Recanati and his world view—The influence of humanism on the Jewish community in Italy—Moses Rieti and his Mikdash Meat—Rieti's inclination toward the Kabbalah—Platonic influence on the philosophy of the Renaissance era—Jehudah Abravanel and his tragic life—Abravanel's Dialoghi di amore—Love as the foundation of the world—Beauty as the mother of love—The human personality as the connecting link between the world and its Creator.

Chapter Two: JEWISH MYSTICISM AND THE ITALIAN HUMANISTS; GRAMMARIANS AND SCHOLARS / 25

Jewish mysticism and the humanists of Italy—Pico della Mirandola—Elijah Delmedigo and his Behinat Ha-Dat—Yohanan Alemanno and his doctrine of the "divine madness"—Reuchlin, Widmanstadt, Baruch of Benevento, and Jacob Mantino—The Hebrew language and the ancient world—Moses Ibn Habib and his Darchei Noam—Messer Leon and his Nofet Tzufim—The Latin classics and Bible exegesis—Abraham de Balmes and his Mikneh Avraham—Elijah Levita as philologist—His Christian friends and pupils—The first Hebrew printing establishments—Levita as proofreader—Missionary tendencies; Sebastian Muenster and Paulus Fagius and their conversionist works—Bonet de Lattes—Joseph Ibn Yahya and his Torah Or.

Contents

Chapter Three: HISTORICAL LITERATURE IN THE FIFTEENTH AND SIXTEENTH CENTURIES / 61

The intensified interest in cosmography and the descriptions of the newly discovered lands—Abraham Farrisol and his Iggeret Orehot Olam—Joseph Ha-Kohen and his description of “Spanish India”—The flowering of historiography as a result of the expulsion from Spain—Abraham Zacuto as astronomer and historian—The family Ibn Verga and their Shevet Yehudah—Samuel Usque and his poem—Joseph Ha-Kohen as community leader and historian; his Divrei Ha-Yamim and Emek Ha-Bacha—Elijah Capsali and his Dvei Eliahu; Capsali as stylist and scholar—Gedaliah Ibn Yahya and his Shalsholet Ha-Kabbalah—The importance of Ibn Yahya’s work as a source of Jewish folklore—Interest in archaeology; Abraham Portaleone and his Shiltei Ha-Gibborim.

Chapter Four: THE BELATED BATTLE AGAINST PHILOSOPHY; AZARIAH DEI ROSSI / 89

The belated battle against Aristotle’s philosophy—Yeḥiel of Pisa and his Minḥat Kenaot—David Messer Leon’s Tehillah Le-David—Obadiah Sforno and his Or Ammim—The Bible as the source of all the sciences—The decline of philosophical thought—Mantua as cultural center—Jewish artists at the court of the Gonzagas—“Friends of women” and “enemies of women”—Jehudah Sommo and David Messer Leon—The Provençal (Provinciali) family and the proposal for a Jewish academy—Jehudah Moscato as humanist and orator—His Nefutzot Yehudah and Kol Yehudah—Azariah dei Rossi as founder of critical historical science—The battle against his Meor Enayim.

Chapter Five: THE DECLINE OF THE RENAISSANCE ERA; LEO DE MODENA / 115

The decline of the Renaissance era—Spanish power and the Catholic reaction in Italy—Ignatius of Loyola and Gian Pietro

Contents

Carafa; the Jesuits and the Theatines—The Inquisitorial censors and persecutions of Hebrew books—The burning of the Talmud and of Marranos—The decree of Pope Paul IV and the role of the Jewish doctors—Further censorship of Hebrew books—The reaction in the Jewish environment—The strengthening of mystical currents—The first printed editions of the Zohar and other Kabbalist works—Israel Saruk (Sarug) and Menahem da Fano—The role of the German rabbis in Italy—Jehudah Minz and Joseph Colon—Jacob Landau and Meir Katzenellenbogen—German rabbinic piety and the legacy of the Renaissance—The life of the Venetian ghetto and Leo de Modena's letter and autobiography—Samuel Archevolti and his Arugat Ha-Bosem—Leo de Modena's childhood, character, and literary talent; de Modena as a person—"Common sense" as the highest authority—De Modena's view of the final goal of the world—A rabbi as fierce opponent of rabbinism—De Modena and Jean Meslier—The significance of Kol Sachal—The "destroyer" and the "builder"—De Modena's battle against the Kabbalah—His Ben David and Ari Nohem.

Chapter Six: JOSEPH SOLOMON DELMEDIGO / 155

Joseph Solomon Delmedigo; his wandering life; his correspondence with the Karaites—Delmedigo as disseminator of Copernicus' doctrine—Delmedigo's world outlook; the tragedy of his soul; his true face and the strange mask—Delmedigo's attitude toward mysticism; his allusory and disguised style in Matzref Le-Hochmah and other works—The orthodox movement and its representatives: Azariah Figo and Samuel Aboab—The decline of the Renaissance current in Italian Jewry—Moses Zacuto as poet and mystic.

Bibliographical Notes	/	183
Glossary of Hebrew and Other Terms	/	197
Index	/	205

