

Contents

Preface	vii
Introduction Lubomír Dunaj and Kurt C.M. Mertel	1
Part One Critical Hermeneutics as Social Theory
1 The Case for a Critical Hermeneutics: From the Understanding of Power to the Power of Understanding Simon Susen	7
2 Power, the Body and Reflexivity. Hans-Herbert Kögler's Hermeneutics in the Context of Critical Sociology Rainer Winter	71
3 Naturalizing Kögler Stephen Turner	87
Part Two Recognition, Cosmopolitanism, Religion
4 The Moral Stance, Our Moralizing Nature, and the Hermeneutic and Empathic Dimension of Human Relations Karsten R. Stueber	105
5 Dialogue, Cosmopolitanism, and Language Education Werner Delanoy	123
6 Secularity, Religion, and Dialogue: Rethinking the Conditions of the Possibility for Genuine Complementary Learning Paul Healy	139
7 The Limits of Interreligious Hermeneutics and the Need for Alternative Understanding John C. Maraldo	159
Part Three Toward a Critical Hermeneutics of the Present
8 The Ontology of the Present and the Tasks of a Future Sociology Frédéric Vandenberghe	181
9 Cherche pas à Comprendre : Cosmopolitan Hermeneutics in Difficult Times William Outhwaite	195
10 Playing More Seriously: An Enactivist Critique of Kögler's Critical Reflexive Dialogue Lauren Swayne Barthold	215
11 Dialogue in a Polarized World—Is There a Way Out? Randi Gressgård	231

Conclusion

Social Ontology, Dialogic Recognition, and Contemporary Challenges:
A Reply. Hans-Herbert Kögler 249

List of Contributors 291

Index 295