

Contents

Abbreviations	xiv
Frequently cited principles	xx
Introduction. The philosophical problem: substance and nature	I
1. The medieval problem	I
2. Substance, nature, and individuation: some medieval analyses	9
3. Literature	24
Part I Models for the hypostatic union	27
1. The historical and philosophical background	29
1. History	29
2. Philosophy	33
2. The concrete whole–concrete part model: pro et contra	51
1. Pro : Thomas Aquinas	51
2. Contra : (1) Thomas Aquinas	62
3. Contra : (2) Matthew of Aquasparta	64
4. Contra : (3) William of Ware	66
5. Contra : (4) Godfrey of Fontaines and Duns Scotus	69
6. Dominicans after Aquinas	71
3. The substance–accident model: (1) Franciscans from Bonaventure to William of Ware	77
1. Bonaventure	78
2. Matthew of Aquasparta	82
3. Peter John Olivi	83
4. William of Ware	85
4. The substance–accident model: (2) Giles of Rome and his opponents	89
1. Giles of Rome	89
2. Henry of Ghent	104
3. Godfrey of Fontaines	114
4. Hervaeus Natalis and Duns Scotus	119
5. The substance–accident model: (3) Duns Scotus	121
1. The type of unity	121
2. Accidental dependence and truth-making	124
3. Identity and mereology	128
4. An Aristotelian problem	133
5. Indwelling	136
Excursus 1. Consequences of the union	137

Part II Trinitarian issues	145
6. Some points of Christological consensus	147
1. The Incarnation and the divine essence	147
2. The Incarnation of just one divine person	151
3. Causality and divine action in the Incarnation	152
7. The ratio terminandi : essence or personal property?	156
1. The omnipotence and infinity arguments	159
2. The perfection argument: Henry of Ghent	160
3. The ratio terminandi as divine essence: William of Ware	162
4. The ratio terminandi as personal property: Richard of Middleton	164
5. Duns Scotus against the omnipotence and infinity arguments	165
6. Duns Scotus against the perfection argument	167
7. The independence argument: Duns Scotus	170
Part III The communication of properties	181
8. Christological predication	183
1. The communication of properties	183
2. Reduplication and contradictory predicates	192
9. Relations and intrinsic properties	206
1. Theories	208
2. Evaluation	213
10. Christ's human activity: agency and predication	218
Excursus 2. Counting persons and natures	230
Part IV Theories of subsistence	237
11. The historical background	239
12. Esse theories of subsistence	246
1. Thomas Aquinas	246
2. Henry of Ghent (1): Pre-1286	257
3. Henry of Ghent (2): Post-1286	261
4. Giles of Rome	263
5. Two Dominicans after Aquinas	269
13. Relation theories of subsistence	270
1. Richard of Middleton	270
2. William of Ware	273
14. Negation theories of subsistence: (1) the thirteenth century	285
1. Peter John Olivi	285
2. Godfrey of Fontaines	290
3. Hervaeus Natalis	295
15. Negation theories of subsistence: (2) Duns Scotus	297
1. In favour of the negation theory	297

2. The negation theory of subsistence	301
3. Are negation theories fatally metaphysically flawed?	308
Conclusion. A programme for Christology	311
1. The assumed nature as an individual substance	312
2. The programme	317
Bibliography	325
Index locorum	337
General index	345