

Contents

	Preface to the English Edition	ix
	Introduction	I
I.	The Early Husserl: Logic, Epistemology, and Intentionality	7
	Husserl's Criticism of Psychologism 7—The Concept of Intentionality 13
	Act, Meaning, Object 22—Signitive and Intuitive Givenness 27
	Evidence 31—Categorial Objects and Wesensschau 35
	Phenomenology and Metaphysics 39
2.	Husserl's Turn to Transcendental Philosophy: Epoché, Reduction, and Transcendental Idealism	43
	Presuppositionlessness 44—The Cartesian Way and the Ontological Way 47—Some Misunderstandings 53—Husserl's Transcendental Idealism 68—The Concept of Constitution 72
3.	The Later Husserl: Time, Body, Intersubjectivity, and Lifeworld	79
	A. TIME 80
	Primal Impression-Retention-Protention 81—Absolute Consciousness 86—Horizon and Presence 93
	B. THE BODY 98
	The Body and Perspectivity 98—The Body as Subject and the Body as Object 101

C. INTERSUBJECTIVITY 109

Solipsism 109—Transcendental Intersubjectivity 110—The Experience of the Other 112—The Constituting Intersubjectivity 115
Subjectivity—Inter/subjectivity 120

D. THE LIFEWORLD 125

The Lifeworld and the Crisis of Science 125—Normality and Tradition 133

Conclusion

141

Notes

147

Bibliography

161

Index

175