

Table of contents

Acknowledgments	IX
Introduction	1
Aarnes Gudmestad and Amanda Edmonds
CHAPTER 1
Data collection and analysis in developmental L2 pragmatics research: Discourse completion test, role play, and naturalistic recording	7
Naoko Taguchi
CHAPTER 2
Data collection in the research on the effectiveness of corrective feedback: A synthetic and critical review	33
Shaofeng Li
CHAPTER 3
Data analysis and sampling: Methodological issues concerning proficiency in SLA research	63
Tania Leal
CHAPTER 4
Novel sounds: What L2 phonetic data might be telling us that we do not always hear	89
Megan Solon
CHAPTER 5
Operationalizing variables: The case of future-time expression in additional-language French	125
Amanda Edmonds and Aarnes Gudmestad
CHAPTER 6
The potential of publicly shared longitudinal learner corpora in SLA research	149
Nicole Tracy-Ventura and Amanda Huensch
CHAPTER 7
Concept-oriented analysis: A reflection on one approach to studying interlanguage development	171
Kathleen Bardovi-Harlig

CHAPTER 8

Naturalistic data in L2 pragmatics research: Challenges and opportunities 197

Rachel Shively

Conclusion: Data, open science, and methodological reform in second language acquisition research 219

Emma Marsden and Luke Plonsky

Index 229