

Contents

List of figures	vii
Acknowledgments	viii
List of contributors	ix
Introduction: toward a humanist account of digital labor	1
ANDREW PILSCH AND SHAWNA ROSS
PART I
Government	15
1 Racialized surveillance and the US census: tabulating labor	17
J. D. SCHNEPF
2 Digital labor and trans histories: resisting assigned gender in the early mainframe era	32
MAR HICKS
3 Big data and universal design in The Home Market: are there market researchers in Utopia?	55
MEGAN FARAGHER
PART II
Industry	75
4 Working in the shadow of the object	77
REBECCA PERRY
5 Work, play, and the banality of the digital: boredom as form	97
PAUL BENZON

6 Labor, data, and amateur inventor in the age of the Silicon Valley boy billionaire: Edisonade, Zuckerbergade	117
NICHOLAS M. KELLY
7 Digitizing labor in the Google Books Project: gloved fingertips and severed hands	133
ANDREA ZEFFIRO
PART III
Out of the office	155
8 Reading women's labor in the cybernetic seventies: vital work	157
MADELEINE MONSON-ROSEN
9 The economy of online comments	172
JOHN R. GALLAGHER
PART IV
University	185
10 The digital labor of blended learning: the Reading Cities project	187
MELISSA DINSMAN, CARRIE JOHNSTON, AND ELIZABETH RODRIGUES
11 Using video games to test the boundaries between work, play, and cultural criticism: the labor of critique	205
MATTHEW KELLY
12 (Re)canonizing world literature with digital archives and online magazines from Hong Kong, Taiwan, and Mainland China	223
JESSICA SIU-YIN YEUNG
13 The stakes of digital labor in the twenty-first-century academy: the revolution will not be Turkified	239
ROOPIKA RISAM
14 Scaling black feminisms: a critical discussion about the digital labor of representation	250
ALEXANDRIA LOCKETT
Index	267