

Table of Contents

Preface — Observations and Work Agenda	7
---	----------

Michael Falser

Historical Introduction.

The many roads to Tianjin. Learned curiosity, political disinterest, and imperialist opportunities: Austria(-Hungary) and China.....	13
---	-----------

Georg Lehner

1. Trade and curiosity.....	14
1.1. Commercial voyages before and after the ‘opening up of China’ (1820s to 1840s).....	14
1.2. The beginnings of Chinese studies in Austria	16
1.3. The making of ‘China’: China’s participation in the Vienna Universal Exhibition, 1873	17
1.4. Austr(o-Hungar)ian travellers: curiosity, scientific exploration, and language studies	20
2. Austria-Hungary as a treaty power	23
2.1. Early consular and diplomatic representation in China	23
2.2. Imperial Chinese Maritime Customs	27
2.3. Wine and weapons: Austrian experts and ‘merchants’ in China	29
2.4. Roman Catholic missionaries	31
3. Imperialist opportunities: the ‘scramble for China’ and the Boxer War.....	32
3.1. Austria-Hungary and the scramble for China	32
3.2. China 1900: Austria-Hungary and the Boxer War.....	35
4. From a tent to urban development: the very beginnings of the Austrian administration.....	41
5. Conclusion	44

Habsburgs going global.

The Austro-Hungarian Concession in Tientsin/Tianjin in China: from a history of failure to a heritage of fake?	45
---	-----------

Michael Falser

1. Preliminaries, challenges, goals	45
2. The unknown episode of Austria-Hungary in China, archival access and the state of research	47
3. Austria-Hungary in Tientsin (1901–1917): a failed project in Habsburgs going global?	53
3.1. From territorial occupation to ‘uneven’ contract and a first contact zone (1901–04)	55
3.2. Establishing visual markers: a consulate, the river quays and an iron bridge (1905–06).....	87

3.3. Between wishful thinking, urban planning, and local realities: developing colonial space (1906–11)	105
3.4. The flood disaster of 1911 and its rediscovered documentation.....	131
3.5. The final years of Austria-Hungary's concession era in Tientsin and its dissolution (1913–24)	148
4. The former Austro-Hungarian concession as part of a global heritage theme park?.....	161
5. Conclusions.....	182
Appendix.....	185
Photographic Album “Austro-Hungarian Concession, Tientsin” (c.1911), with original typescript description in German and translated in English
Bibliography – References.....	261
Glossary of Chinese-English transcriptions	271
Index.....	272
Summary (in English and in Chinese).....	281
Biographical Information about the Authors	287