

Contents

Acknowledgments	7
Note on Transliteration	8
1. Introduction	9
Research Topic	9
State of the Research	10
Energy security	11
Behavioral patterns of state actors in the formulation of energy policy	13
The energy security complex	16
Energy security in Central Asia	18
Research Design	20
Theoretical Framework	21
Strategic-oriented approach vs. market-oriented approach	22
Theoretical model for assessment of the natural gas sector in Central Asia	27
Construction of the Central Asian energy security complex	28
Methodology and Data	34
2. Russia's Energy Policy in Central Asia	39
Energy Resources	39
State Actors in the Energy Sector	42
Energy Policy	47
Russia's western energy markets	51
Russia's eastern energy markets	53
Energy Policy in the Central Asian Energy Security Complex	56
The Central Asia–Center Gas Pipeline System	59
Russia's dependence on Central Asian energy	60
Analysis of Indicators	64

3. China's Energy Policy in Central Asia	68
Energy Resources	68
State Actors in the Energy Sector	73
Energy Policy	77
Energy Policy in the Central Asian Energy Security Complex	81
China's activities in Kazakhstan	82
China's activities in Turkmenistan	84
China's activities in Uzbekistan, Tajikistan, and Kyrgyzstan	86
Analysis of Indicators	91
4. Turkmenistan's Energy Policy in Central Asia	96
Energy Resources	96
State Actors in the Energy Sector	100
Energy Policy	104
Northern route	108
Eastern route	112
Southern route	116
Route through Iran	119
Western route	120
Turkmenistan's Energy Policy in the Central Asian Energy Security Complex	124
Turkmenistan's relationship with Gazprom	124
Turkmenistan's relationship with the China National Petroleum Corporation	129
Analysis of Indicators	154
5. Conclusion	160
Findings of the Research	160
Discussion	167
Bibliography	170
List of Tables	190